Speech and Thought Make Our Lives.
Thinking Is Real Power.
Too Little of It.
How to Die Young.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

We human beings ceased to be animals and became men when we first used thought in place of brute strength.

At some distant day in our development the animal that preceded us here made up its feeble mind that there was something better than strength, teeth and claws, and began to use its little brain.

This animal, our ancestor, the so-called pithecanthropos, or monkey-man, observed the saber-toothed tiger ripping open the stomach of a monster three times its size, watched the mammoth ploughing through the swamps, crushing down trees; observed the great reptiles and all other proofs of brute force, and, without realizing it, this ancestor said vaguely to himself:

"I can't compete when it comes to teeth and claws, weight and bulk. I am a feeble thing in this jumble of power and battle. I must think the way out."

And so our real human life began.

Our ancestor, with a forehead one-quarter of an inch high, a jaw that stuck out as far as the jaw of a gorilla, with teeth bigger than any of those of any bulldog, and with long arms dropping below the knees, that could crush a man of today with ease, this old ancestor of ours decided that he would get out of the battle for supremacy of muscle and teeth and see what could be done with the brain and with thinking.

You can imagine how the thinking process started.

It was hardly real thought at first, just a kind of intelligent impulse. Our ancestor sat up in a tree rubbing his nose and looking at the saber-toothed tiger that couldn't climb.

He saw the shining teeth, six inches long perhaps, and he didn't like the look of them.

Later, when the tiger was gone, he climbed down and picked up a sharp flint, 10 inches long, heavier, sharper and harder than the tiger's tooth.

He held this in his hand, struck his brother with it, killed the brother, and felt highly satisfied with his intellectual accomplishment.

He had discovered that a tooth made of stone held at the end of an arm four foot long, could do as much damage as the tooth of a tiger.

So he fastened his sharp flint to the end of a piece of wood, sat in the tree, stabbed the tiger in the back as

This belief is based on statements by members of the Amundsen expedition still at Spitzbergen who said Amundsen told them that if he did not return by aeroplane within 14 days, or was forced to descned, he would make his way to Cape Columbia.

Invasion of Wheat Belt is Personal Triumph.

ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON WITH PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, June 9.—President Coolidge, homeward bound from the greatest reception he ever received in his political career, was traveling eastward today towards Washington, there to stay out two weeks before embarking on a summer vacation that will keep him in New England until after Labor Day.

During the 27 hours that he stayed in the twin cities of Minnesota, where he featured the hundredth anniversary of the first Norwegian settlement in America. President Coolidge witnessed the largest turnout in his honor that he has ever experienced. Approximately 60,000 people were jammed in the race track of the state fairground, to hear his speech. Every street of St. Paul and Minneapolis that he traversed was lined solidly with citizens of the Northwest.

Demonstrates Popularity.

The Coolidge invasion of the wheat belt was a personal triumph in two days. First he successfully demonstarted his popularity in that section of the country regarded as a LaFollette stronghold, and second, he wiped out the odium of his only other attempt to address the people of the Twin Cities.

In 1922 Mr. Coolidge, then vice-president, visited Minneapolis in behalf of the re-election of Senator Frank B. Kellogg, competing with an exhausting heat and the prospect of a horse race he was booed down and never completed his speech. Yesterday 60,000 people jammed the fairground and, oblivious to a howling wind and an intermitent rain, cheered the pres-

MIDLAND ROAD BIDS OPENED IN HARRISBURG BY HIGHWAY CHIEF

State Line Work Will Be Let in Two Sections.

8,448-FOOT JOB

Four Estimates are Submitted on Creek Bridge.

Bids for the improvement of the stretch of roadway between the western corporate limits of Midland and the Ohio State line were opened in Harrisburg today by the Pennsylvania State Highway department.

The road will be constructed in two sections—one from Midland to the upper end of Smiths Ferry and the other from the borough of Glasgow to the state line, the total distance being 8,448 feet, or one and three-fifths miles The road will be of concrete construction, 18 and 20 feet in width.

That part of the highway within the Smiths Ferry and Glasgow boroughs will not be improved until next year, when the traction company will change its tracks to the upper side of the railroad right of way. A new hard surfaced road will then be built to connect the two sections of improvement but in the meantime traffic will follow the main street through Smiths Ferry.

Four bids for the construction of a new concrete span over Beaver Creek to replace the old iron bridge now being used, were opened by the county commissioners last week.

The lowest bid was submitted by D. R. Purdy, Clinton, Pa., whose offer was $61,257.84 with a 360-day time limit. Walter S. Rae was the next lowest, with an offer of $63,000 for 160-day time limit. The Ferris Engineering company, Pittsburgh, offered to build the bridge in 140 days for $64,400 while D. F. Nellis & Son Company of East Liverpool submitted a bid of $65,461 with a 210-day limit.

PROPOSED BOND ISSUE TO PAY FOR EIGHTH ST. JOB GIVEN O. K.

City May Authorize $45,000 Flotation for Improvement.

HAMILTON RULES

Caucus Session of Council is Called Tonight.

The city of East Liverpool may issue bonds to the extent of $45,000 for the improvement of West Eighth street, County Auditor Charles Hamilton has advised Solicitor Harry L. Brokaw, it developed today.

A caucus session of the council has been called for 6:30 o'clock tonight to consider the proposal. Legislation, authorizing Service Director A. G. Ellis to enter into a contract with the county commissioners, the Liverpool township board of trustees and the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company, to share in the cost of the improvement, probably will be enacted at the meeting of the solons Friday evening.

Township Ready to Act

The improvement of West Eighth street, from the West End school to the western corporate limits, will cost about $75,000, which includes private right-of-way which must be acquired to widen the street. The township trustees have agreed to grade and hard surface Shadyside avenue from Eighth street to the city limits with brick, concrete or asphalt, if the city completes the Eighth street job.

The county commissioners will put $20,000 in the Eighth street work while the traction company will contribute $15,000. The street car company has asked their payments be extended over a period of five years, interest on the money to be paid at a rate of six percent. This leaves the city's share in the improvement at $40,000, of which $10,000 will be taken from the street and maintenance fund, the remaining $30,000 to be covered by bonds. Bonds must also be issued for the traction company's share, which will be paid back, however, at the end of five years.

Council discussed the proposed improvement at the last meeting, but de-

TENNESSEE'S LEGISLATORS DECLARE THEY PASSED FAMOUS EVOLUTION LAW BECAUSE THEY BELIEVE THEORY "INTERFERES WITH HOLY BIBLE"

(Editor's Note: Nothing since the introduction of the Einstein theory of relativity has aroused more discussion in the scientific world than the indictment and approaching trial of a Tennessee high school teacher for instructing his pupils in the theory of the evolution of man.

Scientists who have long accepted Darwinism have perplexedly asked themselves: "Why was this law passed?"

The answer is contained in the story below).

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.
(Copyright, 1925, by I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, June 9.—Tennessee's famous evolution law, under which young Prof. "Johnny" Scopes is to be tried and probably convicted for teaching high school students that they evolved from lower forms of life through natural processes, was passed because an overwhelming majority of Tennessee's law-makers believe that the theory of evolution "interferes with the Bible."

And it would pass again if put to the test. The uproar that the law has caused, and the ridicule heaped upon it by scientists and men of learning generally, have in no way operated to change the minds of Tennessee legislators on this point.

Afraid of Public Sentiment.

These facts were disclosed today when International News Service invited a number of Tennessee legislators to explain their votes on the measure. Opinions on both sides were sought, and the replies afford an interesting insight into basic, underlying motives that inspired the adoption of this much talked of legislation.

One legislator, Senator W. Mack Fuqua, of Nashville, who did not vote for or against because he was denied the privilege of debating it, frankly declared the law was passed because the representatives of the rural districts were afraid to vote "no" and then explain it back home where fundamentalism is taught from the cradle.

"My objection to the bill," he said, "was not based upon whether the theory of evolution was inconsistent with the Bible, but rather on the principle that church and state should be separate for governmental reasons. Their attempted unity has left blood-stained tracks thru the pages of European history.

"Most legislators supported the measure because they were afraid of a possible public sentiment, especially in the rural districts where religious principles are more devoutly entertained and exercised. It was easier to vote for it than to explain to the people back home.

"Lack of moral courage to vote convictions was largely responsible for the passage of this measure, as for many others."

But Senator Fuqua was woefully in the minority. The bill passed the senate 20 to 6, and the house 89 to 3, illustrating the unanimity of Tennessee's belief in this matter.

Some of the explanations of votes follow:

Senator W. P. Monroe, Maynardsville—"Modernism as represented by evolution denies the scriptural scheme of creation. If it could be established that one part of the Bible is a myth or fake, it would naturally follow that the word of God as a whole is foundationless. I recognize in evolution an effort to destroy the Bible and its influence, despite the fact that what we are today we owe to the Bible and the teachings of Christ. It was upon this hypothesis that I favored the bill."

Senator S. T. Doty, Springville—"I voted for the evolution law because the Bible plainly explains how man was created."

Senator W. French Grubb, Chattanooga—"I voted for the measure because I believe in the origin of man as taught in the Bible and because the state has the absolute right to direct the expenditure of its public funds in the education of children."

Lawmaker Raps Dr. Butler.

Senator Roy C. Wallace, Lenoir City—"I voted for the law because I thought it a good one. Every intellectual person believes in evolution in many forms so long as it does not conflict with the Holy Bible. I notice that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbus University, has stated that enactment of this law was a show of ignorance. All Tennesseans would be rather more or less ignorant of some things than be dubbed an educated fool. I suppose he thinks it was a bunch of ignoramuses who led the nation in volunteering in all our wars. I suppose he thinks it was a bunch of ignoramuses who helped break the Hindenburg line.

"The time has come when Tennessee will protect her young from the influence of such educated fools."

Senator Harvey Whitefield, Clarksville—"I voted for the bill as a means to prevent teaching that the Bible is not true and also to conform to the will of the majority of my constituents. The bill provides that nothing should be taught that man evolved from a lower animal. I believe as my colleagues did that the Genesis story of creation is true and that Jesus was divine."

Senator Hugh T. Bennett, Fruitland—"I do not believe in the theory of

MIDLAND ROAD BIDS OPENED IN HARRISBURG BY HIGHWAY CHIEF

State Line Work Will Be Let in Two Sections.

8,448-FOOT JOB

Four Estimates are Submitted on Creek Bridge.

Bids for the improvement of the stretch of roadway between the western corporate limits of Midland and the Ohio State line were opened in Harrisburg today by the Pennsylvania State Highway department.

The road will be constructed in two sections—one from Midland to the upper end of Smiths Ferry and the other from the borough of Glasgow to the state line, the total distance being 8,448 feet, or one and three-fifths miles The road will be of concrete construction, 18 and 20 feet in width.

That part of the highway within the Smiths Ferry and Glasgow boroughs will not be improved until next year, when the traction company will change its tracks to the upper side of the railroad right of way. A new hard surfaced road will then be built to connect the two sections of improvement but in the meantime traffic will follow the main street through Smiths Ferry.

Four bids for the construction of a new concrete span over Beaver Creek to replace the old iron bridge now being used, were opened by the county commissioners last week.

The lowest bid was submitted by D. R. Purdy, Clinton, Pa., whose offer was $61,257.84 with a 360-day time limit. Walter S. Rae was the next lowest, with an offer of $63,000 for 160-day time limit. The Ferris Engineering company, Pittsburgh, offered to build the bridge in 140 days for $64,400 while D. F. Nellis & Son Company of East Liverpool submitted a bid of $65,461 with a 210-day limit.

The bridge will be built at the same time as the road.

PROPOSED BOND ISSUE TO PAY FOR EIGHTH ST. JOB GIVEN O. K.

City May Authorize $45,000 Flotation for Improvement.

HAMILTON RULES

Caucus Session of Council is Called Tonight.

The city of East Liverpool may issue bonds to the extent of $45,000 for the improvement of West Eighth street, County Auditor Charles Hamilton has advised Solicitor Harry L. Brokaw, it developed today.

A caucus session of the council has been called for 6:30 o'clock tonight to consider the proposal. Legislation, authorizing Service Director A. G. Ellis to enter into a contract with the county commissioners, the Liverpool township board of trustees and the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company, to share in the cost of the improvement, probably will be enacted at the meeting of the solons Friday evening.

Township Ready to Act

The improvement of West Eighth street, from the West End school to the western corporate limits, will cost about $75,000, which includes private right-of-way which must be acquired to widen the street. The township trustees have agreed to grade and hard surface Shadyside avenue from Eighth street to the city limits with brick, concrete or asphalt, if the city completes the Eighth street job.

The county commissioners will put $20,000 in the Eighth street work while the traction company will contribute $15,000. The street car company has asked their payments be extended over a period of five years, interest on the money to be paid at a rate of six percent. This leaves the city's share in the improvement at $40,000, of which $10,000 will be taken from the street and maintenance fund, the remainihg $30,000 to be covered by bonds. Bonds must also be issued for the traction company's share, which will be paid back, however, at the end of five years.

Council discussed the proposed improvement at the last meeting, but de-

TENNESSEE'S LEGISLATORS DECLARE THEY PASSED FAMOUS EVOLUTION LAW BECAUSE THEY BELIEVE THEORY "INTERFERES WITH HOLY BIBLE"

(Editor's Note: Nothing since the introduction of the Einstein theory of relativity has aroused more discussion in the scientific world than the indictment and approaching trial of a Tennessee high school teacher for instructing his pupils in the theory of the evolution of man.

Scientists who have long accepted Darwinism have perplexedly asked themselves: "Why was this law passed?"

The answer is contained in the story below).

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES,
(Copyright, 1925, by I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, June 9.—Tennessee's famous evolution law, under which young Prof. "Johnny" Scopes is to be tried and probably convicted for teaching high school students that they evolved from lower forms of life through natural processes, was passed because an overwhelming majority of Tennessee's law-makers believe that the theory of evolution "interferes with the Bible."

And it would pass again if put to the test. The uproar that the law has caused, and the ridicule heaped upon it by scientists and men of learning generally, have in no way operated to change the minds of Tennessee legislators on this point.

Afraid of Public Sentiment.

These facts were disclosed today when International News Service invited a number of Tennessee legislators to explain their votes on the measure. Opinions on both sides were sought, and the replies afford an interesting insight into basic, underlying motives that inspired the adoption of this much talked of legislation.

One legislator, Senator W. Mack Fuqua, of Nashville, who did not vote for or against because he was denied the privilege of debating it, frankly declared the law was passed because the representatives of the rural districts were afraid to vote "no" and then explain it back home where fundamentalism is taught from the cradle.

"My objection to the bill," he said, "was not based upon whether the theory of evolution was inconsistent with the Bible, but rather on the principle that church and state should be separate for governmental reasons. Their attempted unity has left blood-stained tracks thru the pages of European history.

"Most legislators supported the measure because they were afraid of a possible public sentiment, especially in the rural districts where religious principles are more devoutly entertained and exercised. It was easier to vote for it than to explain to the people back home.

"Lack of moral courage to vote convictions was largely responsible for the passage of this measure, as for many others."

But Senator Fuqua was woefully in the minority. The bill passed the senate 20 to 6, and the house 89 to 3, illustrating the unanimity of Tennessee's belief in this matter.

Some of the explanations of votes follow:

Senator W. P. Monroe, Maynardsville—"Modernism as represented by evolution denies the scriptural scheme of creation. If it could be established that one part of the Bible is a myth or fake, it would naturally follow that the word of God as a whole is foundationless. I recognize in evolution an effort to destroy the Bible and its influence, despite the fact that what we are today we owe to the Bible and the teachings of Christ. It was upon this hypothesis that I favored the bill."

Senator S. T. Doty, Springville—"I voted for the evolution law because the Bible plainly explains how man was created."

Senator W. French Grubb, Chattanooga—"I voted for the measure because I believe in the origin of man as taught in the Bible and because the state has the absolute right to direct the expenditure of its public funds in the education of children."

Lawmaker Raps Dr. Butler.

Senator Roy C. Wallace, Lenoir City—"I voted for the law because I thought it a good one. Every intellectual person believes in evolution in many forms so long as it does not conflict with the Holy Bible. I notice that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbus University, has stated that enactment of this law was a show of ignorance. All Tennesseans would be rather more or less ignorant of some things than be dubbed an educated fool. I suppose he thinks it was a bunch of ignoramuses who led the nation in volunteering in all our wars. I suppose he thinks it was a bunch of ignoramuses who helped break the Hindenburg line.

"The time has come when Tennessee will protect her young from the influence of such educated fools."

Senator Harvey Whitefield, Clarksville—"I voted for the bill as a means to prevent teaching that the Bible is not true and also to conform to the will of the majority of my constituents. The bill provides that nothing should be taught that man evolved from a lower animal. I believe as my colleagues did that the Genesis story of creation is true and that Jesus was divine."

Senator Hugh T. Bennett, Fruitland—"I do not believe in the theory of evolution as applied to man. All things are reproduced after their kind. Most people in Tennessee believe the biblical account of the creation of man. Destroy the faith in God's word and you have destroyed all that is best in civilization. Teachers of evolution should not be permitted to discuss immoral ideas in the guise of science."

Senator D. D. Humphreys, Hohenwald—"This law plainly provides it is unlawful to teach in schools supported by the state any theory that contradicts the origin of man as taught in the Bible. We have the right to say what shall not be taught. The act in no way interferes with any religious idea in the state. If man actually came from the monkey I do not want such an idea taught our children. This is being done by some teachers in Tennessee and for these reasons I voted for the bill."

Explain Votes Against Bill.

Four of the six senators who voted against the bill explained their reasons as follows:

Senator (Dr.) C. Benton King, Brownsville—"I voted against the bill because I thought it was stupid to try to control thought by law. The theory of evolution does not discredit the Bible. Any attempt to impede search for truths is an assault on all education and therefore intolerable."

Senator John H. Trice, Jackson—"I voted against the bill because I believed its enactment into law unnecessary, would defeat the object sought, and would inflame the spirit of bigotry and demagogism."

Senator Cicil Sims, Nashville: "I voted against the bill because I believe in the fundamental principle of the separation of church and state. This bill was but first step, as evidenced by a companion bill, to prohibit Jews from teaching in the public schools. This was defeated. I do not approve of legislative effort, direct or indirect, concerning the truth or error of either evolution or Genesis. The Christian religion has survived centuries without legislative assistance and needs none now. Believing the Biblical injunction, 'Know the truth and the truth shall make you free,' and the Jeffersonian principle of freedom of thought so long as truth is left free to combat error, I opposed the bill."

Senator Frank D. Fuller, Memphis: "I opposed the bill because I saw no need for a conflict between science and the Bible. The passage of such regulatory laws is an insult to intelligence, and as a rule utterly fails to accomplish the purpose desired. I predicted if the bill became a law its effect would be to stimulate rather than retard the study and teaching of evolution, and that people who had never given the subject a moment's thought would become ardent evolutionists and attempt to propound theories of which they had not the slightest intelligent conception. If one desired to broadcast evolution to the four corners of the earth the passage of this bill would be an active means to this end."

ident to the echo throughout a 45-minute address. On his way to the fairground, 16 miles of streets were packed with flag-waving, enthusiastic citizens.

The presidential party is returning to Washington aboard the same Baltimore & Ohio special that brought them out to St. Louis. The same group is aboard in addition to Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg, Senator Lenroot, (Republican of Wisconsin), Secretary to the President Sanders, and the military aide and physician, Col. S. A. Cheney and Maj. J. F. Coupal. Senator Lenroot left the train at Madison, Wis., at 7:20 this morning, where a brief operating stop was made.

Receives 3,000 Personally.

The president and his guests boarded their train last night at 9:30 following a public reception in honor of Mr. Coolidge, staged at the state capitol at St. Paul. For an hour, the president received personally all those who desired to meet him. It was estimated that 3,000 people filed through the line, with nearly 10,000 disappointed outside.

At Chicago, shortly before noon, the presidential special switched over from the Chicago and Northwestern to the Baltimore and Ohio road, on which the final stretch of the journey will be made.

Two towns, Olanchito and La Ceiba, Honduras, only 30 miles apart, but separated by a mule-pack mountainous journey of two days, are to be put within a few hours of each other, by a government highway costing nearly $125,000.

he passed, broke his backbone, ate his flesh, took the teeth to make implements and ornaments for himself—and so began the thinking human race.

Later man used explosive dynamite shells in place of sharp flints, he dwelt in skyscrapers in place of holes in the rocks, he used flying machines in place of canoes dug out of a log.

But all the time he was a thinking on strength, teeth, muscle, thick hide, animal instead of an animal relying claws.

And every step that he gained in his upward climb toward control of the earth and dominion over the animals was gained by the thought that was started when he made up his mind to use the sharp flint and conquer the long white teeth.

Readers, whether you be old or young, realize now that your salvation, your hope, your chances in life, are all in the thinking power hidden away in your head.

How much will you use that power use it efficiently?

How long are you going to wait to of thought?

To what extent can you make thought, recently acquired by men, control the animal forces and passions that date back millions of years to our earliest ancestors of the days when this earth was young?

Are you going to use your power, your health, your, clear mind, and your will NOW to solve your problems and protect yourself and be a benefit to the human race or are you to wait and waste and wonder and delay, until it is too late?

Chicago students, to make scientific tests possible, remained awake voluntarily for 115 hours. Although awake, they dreamed as though they were asleep. They only SEEMED awake.

Those students at the end of their lives, will suffer because of the tests voluntarily endured. After two days without sleep, it was impossible for them to write legibly and they were soon unable to distinguish individuals, and some lost control of their minds completely.

That should be a lesson for all young gentlemen who have heard that Napoleon could get along with four hours sleep a day and try to imitate him.

If Napoleon had slept more regularly, he might have stayed awake which he did not do, on the day of the battle of Waterloo. And it might have been Wellington's "Waterloo" instead of being Napoleon's.

Here's a plan for living a short time only:

Sleep too little.

Eat too much.

Believe and patronize the bootlegger.

ferred action until an investigation could be made as to the city's authority to issue the necessary bonds, the matter being left in the hands of the finance committee together with Solicitor Brokaw and Service Director Ellis. The city is practically up to its limit in bonded indebtedness but as approximately $80,000 worth of bonds will be paid off this year, the county auditor ruled that new ones may be issued for this improvement.

Options on the property bordering on West Eighth street, to be used in the widening of the street, expire early in July. It is likely that deals for the lots will be closed within the next two weeks. The improvement will be undertaken by the board of county commissioners who are expected to seek bids on the work at the earliest possible date and complete the job this summer. The township trustees, who will not only improve that part of the Campground road, or Shadyside avenue, in East Liverpool but also link up the road past the Oak Grove camp ground, are also expected to take up their part of the legislation soon.

A Curtiss-Canuck plane, owned by Miss Mary E. Nentwick, Dresden avenue, third in the air race, starting from Stow's field, near Akron, last Saturday. The plane was piloted by A. F. Everett, of Akron.

First place was captured by Alton Parker, Youngstown, also flying a Curtiss-Canuck machine. He was awarded the silver trophy furnished by Captain Charles Mungessor, French ace. Guy McLaughlin, Akron, carried off second honors.

Harry Kinsey, Cleveland aviator who was killed at the contest, was not entered in the air tournament but was flying from his home in Cleveland to Akron to witness the race when his plane, from a height of 1,500 feet took a nose dive to the ground. His skull was fractured and he died soon after reaching the hospital.

Balloon Pilots Rescued

out mishap at Anneville late Monday, according to word today.

It is feared the balloons have been carried to sea.

The Belgian Aero club, promoter of the race, was endeavoring to get trace of the balloons. The belief that the remaining balloons were swept seaward was due to the circumstances of the Spanish balloon, Hesperio, coming down on the sea yesterday. Its crew was rescued by an American steamer. Another balloon was forced down on the shore of the ocean by west winds.

Pilots Noted for Courage.

The pilots of the missing balloons are all noted for their courage. Members of the Aero club said the pilots realized the greatest hazard was that their balloons might be blown out over the Atlantic ocean, but that they hoped a north air current would carry them to England.

If this expected north air current did not appear then, Aero club officials said, there was a possibility one or more of the balloons might be forced to the water through lack of gas or ballast.

The missing ballons are one French and two Belgian balloons. The pilot of one of the Belgian balloons is Ernest De Muyter, who holds the original Gordon Bennett cup.

Charles W. Bowman, who recently became associated with the Smith-Phillips China company, was introduced as a new member.

Plans for the international Rotary convention to be held in Cleveland next week, were outlined by President Frank Wells in charge of the meeting. About 40 members of the local club have already made hotel reservations for the convention which opens Monday. A feature of the program is a historical pageant to be given Monday evening. Ohio Rotarians and their wives will banquet at the Hotel Statler at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

The chorus singing was led by Attorney Blaine H. Cochran, with Mrs. Danks Cochran as accompanist.

As a majority of the local club will be in Cleveland next week, the regular luncheon meeting on Tuesday has been cancelled.

Cleveland Realty Co. President, Shot To Death on Street

CLEVELAND, June 9.—Declared by friends to be the victim of the black hand, which he had feared for more than a year, August Rini, president of the Rini Realty company, and prominent in the political affairs of "Little Italy," was shot to death as he stepped from his auto in front of his office today.

Three gunmen fired six shots. Rini slumped to the ground. The gunmen, all, according to police reports, youthful, jumped in to an auto waiting for them with its engine running and careened down the street at a break neck pace.

The murder, committeed in broad daylight, and in one of the busiest sections of the Italian colony, attracted much attention and scores took up the pursuit of the murderers, who, however, easily outsped their pursuers.

Probe Rail Wreck In Which 12 Men In Gang Were Killed

CONVERSE, Ind., June 9.—An official investigation was launched by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company here today into the accident yesterday which killed 12 and seriously injured five members of a section gang of 30.

Unofficially the accident was said today to have been caused by the engineer running the train too fast over the rails which had just been laid, although officials of the company refused to comment for publication pending completion of their investigation.

The men were laying new rails near the scene of the accident and some opinions were expressed that the rails at the fatal spot had not yet been securely fastened down.

THE REVIEW-TRIBUNE

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 9.—Railroad, oil and some of the specialty stocks were slightly reactionary in the early trading today, in continuation of the selling movement which closed Monday's session. The motor stocks were also under pressure with Maxwell B under 110 for the first time in more than a week, General Motors down to 76, and Studebaker at 45¼, a fall of about four points since last week's flurry which sent the stock to 49.

Havana Electric Railway furnished the only spectacular feature of the period, with an overnight jump of 12 points to 174, at which price a large volume of stock came out. Buying of this stock, of which there is a small floating supply, is believed to be for the account of Electric Bond & Share company, which will eventually control its affairs.

Another favorable commentary on the current volume of domestic business was presented in the weekly report of freight car loadings, which showed a continuation of the demand for steel products and heavy consumption in the motor and building trades. Call money renewals were marked at 4 per cent.

CITIES WIN IN BUS FIGHTS

Supreme Court Rules for Youngstown and Lorain.

COLUMBUS, June 9.—Joint authority to regulate bus operation and other traffic in city streets rests between the state utilities commission and the cities, the state supreme court held today in deciding vexing questions in the famous bus cases. The court ruled that the cities under their police power may reasonably regulate such traffic so long as they do not interfere with the general powers of the ultilities commission and do not impair the efficiency of the utilities affected.

COLUMBUS, June 9.—The city of Youngstown today won its fight to bar jitney buses from congested downtown districts, in an opinion handed down today by the state supreme court. The court's decision overruled the judgment of the Mahoning county appellate court, which enjoined this city from enforcing the ordinance barring jitneys from congested territory, on the ground that bus permits issued by the state utilities commission were superior to the ordinance.

The court also affirmed the order of the state utilities commission fixing designated places for the receipt and discharge of passengers. The appeal was taken by John H. Hogan and other bus operators.

COLUMBUS, June 9.—The Lorain Street Railway company today won its appeal to the state supreme court against orders of the state utilities commission granting permits for operation of motor buses over the Broadway loop in the city of Lorain. Orders of the commission were reversed.

Lots of People Would be Glad to Get $10 a Day

Lots of people right here in East Liverpool.

Lots of people who do much harder work than the carpenters are called upon to do.

Lots of people who have to pay, in one way or another, the $10 a day that the carpenters could be earning right now if they wanted to work.

But the carpenters,—offered $10 a day,—refuse to work and are on strike for $11 a day.

Most people realize that these are not boom times and that business conditions do not warrant rising wages. The carpenters do not seem to realize it.

The carpenters do not seem to realize that if they were to get $11 a day they would be getting it out of the pockets of many people who would be glad to get $10 a day.

It is really the public's battle. And when people generally realize that, they will demand that the carpenters at least submit their case to an arbitration board. The contractors have been suggesting that all along. The carpenters so far have refused. Some one will bring about arbitration in the end. It should be done now.

evolution as applied to man. All things are reproduced after their kind. Most people in Tennessee believe the biblical account of the creation of man. Destroy the faith in God's word and you have destroyed all that is best in civilization. Teachers of evolution should not be permitted to discuss immoral ideas in the guise of science."

Senator D. D. Humphreys, Hohenwald—"This law plainly provides it is unlawful to teach in schools supported by the state any theory that contradicts the origin of man as taught in the Bible. We have the right to say what shall not be taught. The act in no way interferes with any religious idea in the state. If man actually came from the monkey I do not want such an idea taught our children. This is being done by some teachers in Tennessee and for these reasons I voted for the bill."

Explain Votes Against Bill.

Four of the six senators who voted against the bill explained their reasons as follows:

Senator (Dr.) C. Benton King, Brownsville—"I voted against the bill because I thought it was stupid to try to control thought by law. The theory of evolution does not discredit the Bible. Any attempt to impede search for truths is an assault on all education and therefore intolerable."

Senator John H. Trice, Jackson—"I voted against the bill because I believed its enactment into law unnecessary, would defeat the object sought, and would inflame the spirit of bigotry and demagogism."

Senator Cicil Sims, Nashville: "I voted against the bill because I believe in the fundamental principle of the separation of church and state. This bill was but first step, as evidenced by a companion bill, to prohibit Jews from teaching in the public schools. This was defeated. I do not approve of legislative effort, direct or indirect, concerning the truth or error of either evolution or Genesis. The Christian religion has survived centuries without legislative assistance and needs none now. Believing the Biblical injunction, 'Know the truth and the truth shall make you free,' and the Jeffersonian principle of freedom of thought so long as truth is left free to combat error, I opposed the bill."

Senator Frank D. Fuller, Memphis: "I opposed the bill because I saw no need for a conflict between science and the Bible. The passage of such regulatory laws is an insult to intelligence, and as a rule utterly fails to accomplish the purpose desired. I predicted if the bill became a law its effect would be to stimulate rather than retard the study and teaching of evolution, and that people who had never given the subject a moment's thought would become ardent evolutionists and attempt to propound theories of which they had not the slightest intelligent conception. If one desired to broadcast evolution to the four corners of the earth the passage of this bill would be an active means to this end."

ident to the echo throughout a 45-minute address. On his way to the fairground, 16 miles of streets were packed with flag-waving, enthusiastic citizens.

The presidential party is returning to Washington aboard the same Baltimore & Ohio special that brought them out to St. Louis. The same group is aboard in addition to Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg, Senator Lenroot, (Republican of Wisconsin), Secretary to the President Sanders, and the military aide and physician, Col. S. A. Cheney and Maj. J. F. Coupal. Senator Lenroot left the train at Madison, Wis., at 7:20 this morning, where a brief operating stop was made.

Receives 3,000 Personally.

The president and his guests boarded their train last night at 9:30 following a public reception in honor of Mr. Coolidge, staged at the state capitol at St. Paul. For an hour, the president received personally all those who desired to meet him. It was estimated that 3,000 people filed through the line, with nearly 10,000 disappointed outside.

At Chicago, shortly before noon, the presidential special switched over from the Chicago and Northwestern to the Baltimore and Ohio road, on which the final stretch of the journey will be made.

Two towns, Olanchito and La Ceiba, Honduras, only 30 miles apart, but separated by a mule-pack mountainous journey of two days, are to be put within a few hours of each other, by a government highway costing nearly $125,000.

TODAY

he passed, broke his backbone, ate his flesh, took the teeth to make implements and ornaments for himself—and so began the thinking human race.

Later man used explosive dynamite shells in place of sharp flints, he dwelt in skyscrapers in place of holes in the rocks, he used flying machines in place of canoes dug out of a log.

But all the time he was a thinking on strength, teeth, muscle, thick hide, animal instead of an animal relying claws.

And every step that he gained in his upward climb toward control of the earth and dominion over the animals was gained by the thought that was started when he made up his mind to use the sharp flint and conquer the long white teeth.

Readers, whether you be old or young, realize now that your salvation, your hope, your chances in life, are all in the thinking power hidden away in your head.

How much will you use that power use it efficiently?

How long are you going to wait to of thought?

To what extent can you make thought, recently acquired by men, control the animal forces and passions that date back millions of years to our earliest ancestors of the days when this earth was young?

Are you going to use your power, your health, your, clear mind, and your will NOW to solve your problems and protect yourself and be a benefit to the human race or are you to wait and waste and wonder and delay, until it is too late?

Chicago students, to make scientific tests possible, remained awake voluntarily for 115 hours. Although awake, they dreamed as though they were asleep. They only SEEMED awake.

Those students at the end of their lives, will suffer because of the tests voluntarily endured. After two days without sleep, it was impossible for them to write legibly and they were soon unable to distinguish individuals, and some lost control of their minds completely.

That should be a lesson for all young gentlemen who have heard that Napoleon could get along with four hours sleep a day and try to imitate him.

If Napoleon had slept more regularly, he might have stayed awake which he did not do, on the day of the battle of Waterloo. And it might have been Wellington's "Waterloo" instead of being Napoleon's.

Here's a plan for living a short time only:

Sleep too little.

Eat too much.

Believe and patronize the bootlegger.

SHANGHAI, June 9.—Mobs of Chinese threw mud today at American bluejackets stationed at the border settlement to guard foreigners from overt acts by the Chinese on general strike against all foreigners.

Chinese constabulary intervened and dorve off the Chinese before the Americans were forced to take action.

Ten British river and coast steamers failed to sail last night and this morning because of a walkout of members of the Chinese Seamen's union. The union threatens to call out enough men to tie up all shipping, includnig trans-Pacific and European liners.

ferred action until an investigation could be made as to the city's authority to issue the necessary bonds, the matter being left in the hands of the finance committee together with Solicitor Brokaw and Service Director Ellis. The city is practically up to its limit in bonded indebtedness but as approximately $80,000 worth of bonds will be paid off this year, the county auditor ruled that new ones may be issued for this improvement.

Options on the property bordering on West Eighth street, to be used in the widening of the street, expire early in July. It is likely that deals for the lots will be closed within the next two weeks. The improvement will be undertaken by the board of county commissioners who are expected to seek bids on the work at the earliest possible date and complete the job this summer. The township trustees, who will not only improve that part of the Campground road, or Shadyside avenue, in East Liverpool but also link up the road past the Oak Grove camp ground, are also expected to take up their part of the legislation soon.

LOCAL PLANE THIRD IN RACE

Miss Mary Nentwick's Machine in Contest Near Akron.

A Curtiss-Canuck plane, owned by Miss Mary E. Nentwick, Dresden avenue, third in the air race, starting from Stow's field, near Akron, last Saturday. The plane was piloted by A. F. Everett, of Akron.

First place was captured by Alton Parker, Youngstown, also flying a Curtiss-Canuck machine. He was awarded the silver trophy furnished by Captain Charles Mungessor, French ace. Guy McLaughlin, Akron, carried off second honors.

Harry Kinsey, Cleveland aviator who was killed at the contest, was not entered in the air tournament but was flying from his home in Cleveland to Akron to witness the race when his plane, from a height of 1,500 feet took a nose dive to the ground. His skull was fractured and he died soon after reaching the hospital.

Balloon Pilots Rescued

out mishap at Anneville late Monday, according to word today.

It is feared the balloons have been carried to sea.

The Belgian Aero club, promoter of the race, was endeavoring to get trace of the balloons. The belief that the remaining balloons were swept seaward was due to the circumstances of the Spanish balloon, Hesperio, coming down on the sea yesterday. Its crew was rescued by an American steamer Another balloon was forced down on the shore of the ocean by west winds.

Pilots Noted for Courage.

The pilots of the missing balloons are all noted for their courage. Members of the Aero club said the pilots realized the greatest hazard was that their balloons might be blown out over the Atlantic ocean, but that they hoped a north air current would carry them to England.

If this expected north air current did not appear then, Aero club officials said, there was a possibility one or more of the balloons might be forced to the water through lack of gas or ballast.

The missing ballons are one French and two Belgian balloons. The pilot of one of the Belgian balloons is Ernest De Muyter, who holds the original Gordon Bennett cup.

As a majority of the local club will be in Cleveland next week, the regular luncheon meeting on Tuesday has been cancelled.

Cleveland Realty Co. President, Shot To Death on Street

CLEVELAND, June 9.—Declared by friends to be the victim of the black hand, which he had feared for more than a year, August Rini, president of the Rini Realty company, and prominent in the political affairs of "Little Italy," was shot to death as he stepped from his auto in front of his office today.

Three gunmen fired six shots. Rini slumped to the ground. The gunmen, all, according to police reports, youthful, jumped in to an auto waiting for them with its engine running and careened down the street at a break neck pace.

The murder, committeed in broad daylight, and in one of the busiest sections of the Italian colony, attracted much attention and scores took up the pursuit of the murderers, who, however, easily outsped their pursuers.

Probe Rail Wreck In Which 12 Men In Gang Were Killed

CONVERSE, Ind., June 9.—An official investigation was launched by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company here today into the accident yesterday which killed 12 and seriously injured five members of a section gang of 30.

Unofficially the accident was said today to have been caused by the engineer running the train too fast over the rails which had just been laid, although officials of the company refused to comment for publication pending completion of their investigation.

The men were laying new rails near the scene of the accident and some opinions were expressed that the rails at the fatal spot had not yet been securely fastened down.

THE REVIEW-TRIBUNE

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 9.—Railroad, oil and some of the specialty stocks were slightly reactionary in the early trading today, in continuation of the selling movement which closed Monday's session. The motor stocks were also under pressure with Maxwell B under 110 for the first time in more than a week, General Motors down to 76, and Studebaker at 454, a fall of about four points since last week's flurry which sent the stock to 49.

Havana Electric Railway furnished the only spectacular feature of the period, with an overnight jump of 12 points to 174, at which price a large volume of stock came out. Buying of this stock, of which there is a small floating supply, is believed to be for the account of Electric Bond & Share company, which will eventually control its affairs.

Another favorable commentary on the current volume of domestic business was presented in the weekly report of freight car loadings, which showed a continuation of the demand for steel products and heavy consumption in the motor and building trades. Call money renewals were marked at 4 per cent.

German Gymnasiums Go Back to Classic Rule

Berlin.—Nine years of Latin and six years of Greek are again to be required of all boys who complete the course in German gymnasiums.

The amount of classics taught in these schools was reduced after the conclusion of the war, but now the prewar amount of Greek and Latin has been re-established.

There have also been many changes in the schools that prepare girls for the universities; special emphasis is laid upon German history and culture.

In the opinion of German educators other European countries have done more to create a national feeling in their schools than has Germany, and the Germans are endeavoring to make good this shortcoming in their education by lessening the amount of foreign language study and introducing courses in German literature, art and history.

Amundsen May Find Trace of Three Swedish Engineers

North Pole Flyers' Expedition Revives Hopes of Relatives of Men Who Disappeared in Arctic Wastes.

GOTHENBURG, June.—The bold start of Roald Amundsen and his American companion, Lincoln Ellsworth, for the Nort Pole by aeroplane has revived hopes here that they may find traces of the three Swedish engineers—Solomon A. Andree, Nils Strindberg and Knut Fraenkel—who twenty-eight years ago were the first to set out from Spitzenbergen to discover the North Pole by the air route. As at that time neither aeroplane nor dirigible had been invented, they used a drift balloon. Since two days after they left no authentic news has been received of them. Whenever a new expedition sets out for the still unknown regions of the Arctic their relatives and friends throughout Sweden renew their faith that some day a clue will be discovered that will solve the mystery of their fate. Being resourceful and well-equipped men, they certainly made a struggle against adverse circumstances before surrendering, and when the truth is revealed the world may read a story as thrilling as that of Captain Scott, who reached the South Pole a short while after Amundsen, only to succumb with some of his men on the way back.

It was in the United States that Andree got his first notions of sailing through the air. In 1874 he was graduated from the Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm, and after working two years as a mechanical engineer he decided to visit the great Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia and there, in order to get free admission to all the exhibits every day, he worked in the Swedish pavilion as a janitor. His diary shows that for dinner he usually spent from five to ten cents a day and, in addition to the lunch counter diet and drinking too much ice water, a sunstroke came close to reining his health for life. But though he returned ill, he had made the acquaintance of an American balloonist by the name of Wise and from him he had learned his first practical lessons in aviation. Toward the set price of $75 for a flight he was never able to raise more than $50.

After his return to Sweden he continued his interest in the new science and in 1882-83 he also took part in a Swedish expedition to Spitzenbergen which kindled his ambition to reach the North Pole. Ten years later he was head of the Royal Swedish Patent Office nad was then able to get a balloon of his own, the "Seva." In this he reached altitudes of 14,000 feet and made numerous observations of variations in temperature and humidity, formations of snow, hail and rain, the Pole in another balloon. The following Summer he sailed amid general enthusiasm from his port to Spitzenbergen, only to be turned back by unfavorable weather. But the next year he set out again and with his two companions went up on July 11, at 2:30 transmission of sound in vertical directions, the chemical composition of the air and the possibility of making maps from aerial photographs, thus anticipating by thirty years much of the air service work in the World war.

But though wrecked in the "Seva" on the coast of Finland, he announced in 1895 his plan to start for the North p. m. When inflated the balloon, which he had called "Ornen," or "The Eagle," was found to be leaky and the drag ropes, by which he had hoped to steer, broke soon after the start, but a returning pigeon brought the news it had stayed aloft for two days without mishaps. What happened after that no one knows.

RECORD CROWD AT HETH SHOWS

More Than 3,000 Attend Opening of Woodmen's Jubilee.

Greeted by a crowd numbering between 3,000 and 4,000, the L. J. Heth Shows, appearing on the Patterson Athletic Field, as the Woodmen's Festival and Jubilee, opened a week's engagement Monday night.

Nothing but words of praise for the cleanliness and newness of the attractions was heard. The concessions are particularly attractive, and the rides, five in number, were also exceedingly popular, especially a new ride, the Merry Mix-up.

One of the main features of the show, is the monster autodrome, which accommodates three motorcycles and a small racing automobile for the climax of each performance.

Cina's concert band, one of the main musical attractions, is winning high praise, both at the show grounds and with its concerts downtown.

The Heth Shows is one of the largest and cleanest outdoor traveling amusement organizations on the road.

Dead Line For Primaries

Friday marks the 60-day pre-primary period for the filing of declarations of candidacy for places on municipal tickets in the 65 precincts of Columbiana county in which balloting will occur on Tuesday, August 11.

Republican and Democratic nominees will be named for mayor, auditor, treasurer, solicitor and councilmen in East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salem, East Palestine, Salineville, Lisbon, Leetonia and Columbiana.

Comparatively few declarations have been filed with the election board by political aspirants residing in East Liverpool, the largest city which will participate in the primaries. And a like report is made by other political sub-divisions whose electors have the privilege of expressing preferences for candidates on major party tickets. This situation means there will be a last-minute flood of declarations.

Don't wait until the eleventh hour, candidates! Of course, declarations bearing a postmark prior to the expiration date will be accepted, but not infrequently the mails are slow. Midnight Friday night is the dead line.

The Fad For Polar Lands

The searchers for new lands in the Arctic circle must be getting warmer. At least, there is more animated discussion as to whose land it will be when discovered.

Donald B. MacMillan, scheduled to start on a polar cruise June 17, announces that he will claim anything he finds for the United States.

Immediately the Canadian minister of the interior announces that Canada already has claimed and always will claim all lands north of the Dominion right up to the North Pole itself. Canada is willing to take those regions to itself sight unseen.

But here MacMillan sheds a little more light on the importance of such claims. In 1913 his party sailed for 150 miles across the Polar Sea looking for land. They took from the maps land which had previously been shown on them but which failed to materialize among the icebergs; they found no new land.

The feeling persists that there is undiscovered land there which certainly will be discovered and properly charted some day. And with all the revelations of explorers in recent years as to the mildness of the Arctic climate, its supposed vast natural resources —exclusive of ice water—and its possibilities as a productive region, it naturally seems worth while for any country to own a little property up there.

Surely, however, it is nothing for Canada and the United States to make faces at one another about.

Outlawing Poison Gas

The American public had just about lost interest and hope in the Geneva arms traffic conference when it was announced, the other day, that asphyxiating gas was to be outlawed.

Nothing could please humanitarians more than such a step. "Poison gas," in spite of all the clever arguments made for it, is one of the most dreadful things about modern warfare. The public has never forgotten the horror with which it first learned of this particular form of barbarity. The "gassed" soldiers have not forgotten it. There is a widespread fear that unless use of it is suppressed, future warfare will see the merciless axphyxiation of whole civilian populations as well as armies. The "protocol" in which the prohibition is to be embodied will be awaited eagerly by the world.

It is especially pleasing to know that the decision in favor of banning poison gas was due so largely to the appeal of the American delegation.

The conference's decision regarding warships and airplanes has been reconsidered, too, and there is a prospect of doing something to restrict traffic in those types of armament. The conference evidently has been so jarred by public criticism, especially in America, that it is now really trying to accomplish something useful.

Rum And Treaties

A new "prohibition navy" has taken the offensive on the Great Lakes, as well as along the coast. Armed vessels are now actively engaged there in hunting smugglers, in what is said to be at least technical violation of the old Russ-Bagot treaty between Canada and the United States. That pact severely limits the armed forces of both countries on the intervening waters.

It was feared that Canada would make a formal protest, demanding a literal application of the treaty and thereby elminating most of the rum-chasers. But so far, the Canadian government has refrained from action, and United States officials are avoiding discussion of the subject for fear of "starting something."

If Canada is really disposed to stand for a slight technical invasion of her treaty rights, it is a gracious attitude, and also a wise one. For to protest against the operations of the rum-chasers would place Canada in the position of protecting her own smugglers and trying to force a market for her contraband liquor in the states. The spirit of the treaty is more important than the letter, and there is no question about the government and people on this side of the border obeying the spirit of it.

It's the people with the smallest vocabularies who make most use of them.

Automobile traffic is a general consipracy to keep the fellow on the side street from horning into the procession.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 9.—It is at 4 a. m. Manhatten stirs sluggishly from sleep. Even Broadway shows faint trace of life with huskies popping out of subway kiosks with huge bundles of morning papers. Furtive figures with collars turned up and hats pulled down slink to coffee houses.

They want to be first at the newspaper "Help Wanted" bulletin boards. A mere gesture. Jobs do not interest them. Hundreds of them swarm there day after day, read the list and trudge aimlessly away. They merely seek to rub shiny elbows with human misery that loves company.

Broadway calls them "Christmas tree decorators" and "Easter lily salesmen." Where they come from, where they go continues to stump sociologists. And each season brings its fresh recruits. Shirtless men with stubby chins and the hang dog look of the beaten.

The 4 a. m. subway expresses are loaded with aged toothless and rheumatic women who are being whisked down town to scrub mosiac floors in big office buildings. Their yellow socketed eyes seem to belie the weird, mirthful cackles in which they indulge.

Milk cans rattle and hoof-beats are heard. The horse drawn wagon is seldom seen save in the early morning. Rag pickers and belled junk wagons scavenge the gutters and refuse cans. One by one the dazzling array of signs blink out.

Around five o'clock come the army of whistlers. Men who go to work at that time seem unable to refrain from whistling. They are in sharp and happy contrast to the dour, tight-lipped procession that fills the streets a few hours later.

Next to the rather obscure workers the earliest risers in town are the horse back riders who bring their caracoling chargers for a sunup gallop around the park bridle path.

An Efficency Eustace has figured out that a sudden half hour's rain on Fifth avenue causes a loss of $100,000 to merchants.

I never knew what it did to merchants, but I know what a sudden shower did to me one day on that famous street. A torrential rain filled the gutters and I attempted to skip the gutter to a more generous canopy across the way. In doing a Nijinski lean I alighted on something that skidded and landed flat, face up in the swirl of water. If you expect sympathy in such misfortune you're an optimist. I hailed a passing taxi. The driver drew up, looked at my dripping figure and said, "Not in my cab!" I started for a hotel lobby and the doorman said, "Not in here! them rugs cost a fortune." I walked several blocks home and know now what they mean by "He's all wet."

Two mid-town hotels have a brace of attractive young women who are known as "flirt catchers." They are attached to the hotels' detective staff and it is their job to sit about in the public waiting rooms and ensnare flirtatious men. When they have spotted them the house detectives escort them to the door and present a well known kick. It seems foolish to me. Most hotel guests are more or less strangers and suppose they do smile at a pretty woman? Even those who come in from the outside are easily rebuffed if the women look the other way. I'm too old for this flirting business, but it seems to me that in any flirtation the guilt may with justice be split 50-50.

I asked one of these women how many men she had trapped flirting. She said she averaged about two a week. And she said middle aged men were the worst offenders. College boys were never a bother. The first good word I've heard of college boys for a long time.

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 9.—This week there is being held in Cleveland the eighteenth annual convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers. To this convention have come owners and managers of buildings from all sections of the United States. In a way it is what was known among the old-time Methodists as an experience meeting.

Owners of apartment houses, office buildings and business properties are given an opportunity to discuss their problems with those who have had long experience as owners or managers of similar properties. Besides the regular convention sessions there are apartment house sessions at which papers are read on various subjects of particular interest to owners of this type of property. The titles alone insure a large attendance at these sessions, some being as follows: "The Efficient and Economical Maintenance of Apartment Properties" and "What the Renting Public Want."

Then there are the group conferences where are discussed the problems of specialized buildings, such as medical buildings and garages. Such questions as typical layouts, plumbing requirements, rental rates, and garage facilities are taken up and everyone is encouraged to ask the question which has been a special bother to him. In this manner many owners and managers are able to avail themselves of the experience of someone else, and at the same time may be in a position to assist in solving the problem of others.

There is an exhibit of new operating devices where may be seen all the very latest ideas in the efficient operation of large buildings. Perhaps the owner is in the market for an incinerator—well, here is the very latest.

The National Association of Building Owners and Managers should not in any way be confused with the real estate boards. The former draws its members from owners and managers only, while the latter are chiefly concerned with real estate brokers.

The association is divided into three sections—office buildings, apartment houses, and business property. Each has its own committees which study every phase of management of such properties, and endeavor by cooperation to assist all members in obtaining the greatest satisfaction for the least money. It is pointed out that anyone can make a building attractive and give efficient service if there is unlimited money at hand. But in such an instance the tenant is the one who pays in the final analysis. The problem is to make the tenant comfortable and keep him pleased at as low a rate of overhead as is possible. In

Stenographer's Actions Offend Her Employer

She Takes His Advice and Both Now Happy

"I didn't realize how peevish my corn was making me around the office," writes Ruth Stewart, 723 Barry Ave., Chicago, Ill. "Suddenly my whole foot pained. I kicked my shoe off viciously.

"'Miss Ruth,' said my employer, 'instead of letting a mere corn upset you, upset me and upset our work besides, try a good corn remedy tonight. Get rid of your corn. We'll both be happier.'

"The next day I had on a 'Blue-jay' Plaster. Its soft felt ring was encircling my corn—lifting off the painful shoe pressure. When I soaked off the Plaster, the entire corn lifted out. I haven't had a corn from that day to this."

Why let a corn spoil your whole behavior? Put on a shapely "Blue-jay" Plaster and forget you have a corn. It gives instant relief, because its circular pad surrounds the corn and removes painful shoe pressure. An adhesive strip holds the pad in place. Thus the "Blue-jay" preparation—centered in the pad—stays right on top of the corn. Just the right amount to remove the corn gently, as prescribed by the skillful chemist who discovered "Blue-jay." In 48 hours the corn lifts right out.

Avoid the danger of infection that comes from paring corns yourself. Avoid the guess-work that occurs when you drop on a liquid corn remedy. Too much, or too little liquid will not give the right results. In "Blue-jay" Plasters our chemist has measured the dose for you. Hence we recommend "Blue-jay" Plasters as better than any liquid, even than our own. Package of six, 25c at any drug store. Try them, then write us your experience. This NEW way solves woman's oldest hygienic problem in a way centuries of women hoped for

THROUGH the ages, women have suffered a hygienic handicap.

Now it has been largely overcome. There is a new way in personal hygiene.

A way that supplants that uncertainty of the old-time sanitary pad with scientific safety.

Today, women live every day of every year . . . not a moment's charm lost. Dance, motor, wear filmy frocks and gowns in full confidence.

The name is Kotex . . . a method scientifically right.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad. And that means great protection.

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—that ends an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense.

You get it at any department store or drug store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

8 in every 10 women in the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits.

It will mean much to you in health, in daintiness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

GLAND STIMULATION BUILDS UP HEALTH

Dr. Peter Schmidt, a colleague of Dr. Steinach, the famous Viennese surgeon, in a recent address given in Berlin, said that gland stimulation sends new forces into the body and builds up all bodily functions.

The object of glandular treatment is to revive the devitalized glands so they may continue their normal function of supplying the vital glandular secretions so necessary to physical energy and perfect health.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, which is prepared in convenient tablet form, for men and for women, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Accept no substitutes. Insist on genuine Glandogen, the original gland tonic.

DEATH OF COAL MINER PROBED

Moundsville Man's Body Taken From River at Clarington.

Prosecutor J. Lloyd Arnold of Marshall county stated last evening that no marks of violence were noted on the body of John Zasawnik, Moundsville miner who was drowned in the Ohio river early last week.

The prosecutor said that it was apparent that Zasawnik had been under the influence of intoxicants and had fallen from the boat into the river, being unable to rescue himself from the water.

An official investigation of the tragery has been made by Prosecutor Arnold. Zasawnik left home last Monday, saying he was going fishing. The empty boat was found the next day near Pipe Creek, O., having apparently drifted ashore.

Saturday, the body of the missing man was dragged from the river at Clarington, O.

The river victim was a coal miner, idle because of the strike, and was the father of nine children, who, with his wife, survive. The funeral was held yesterday from the Grisell funeral home in Moundsville, and burial took place in Mount Rose cemetery.

Will Profit by Reading Mrs. Quigg's Letter Telling How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her Daughter

Royersford, Pa.—"My daughter was sickly from the time she was 13 years old, and when she was 15 she was irregular and also had severe headaches and pains in her sides and back. She was this way about six months before I began giving her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly, although she had tried it before. It helped her very much. She is not bothered by headaches, backaches, or cramping any more, and has not missed but one day. We recommend it to other mothers with girls who have these troubles."—Mrs. QUIGG, 210 Main St., Royersford, Pa.

DEATH OF COAL MINER PROBED

Moundsville Man's Body Taken From River at Clarington.

Prosecutor J. Lloyd Arnold of Marshall county stated last evening that no marks of violence were noted on the body of John Zasawnik, Moundsville miner who was drowned in the Ohio river early last week.

The prosecutor said that it was apparent that Zasawnik had been under the influence of intoxicants and had fallen from the boat into the river, being unable to rescue himself from the water.

An official investigation of the tragery has been made by Prosecutor Arnold. Zasawnik left home last Monday, saying he was going fishing. The empty boat was found the next day near Pipe Creek, O., having apparently drifted ashore.

Saturday, the body of the missing man was dragged from the river at Clarington, O.

The river victim was a coal miner, idle because of the strike, and was the father of nine children, who, with his wife, survive. The funeral was held yesterday from the Grisell funeral home in Moundsville, and burial took place in Mount Rose cemetery.

FAIRMOUNT CHILDREN'S HOME EXPENSES FOR YEAR $40,397

Stands Sixth in State List of Similar Institutions—Lucas County Holds First Place.

Of the $1,143,776.56 spent for the operation of children's homes in Ohio up to the close of the fiscal year, Aug. 31, 1924, $40,397 was spent by the trustees of the Fairmount Children's home at Alliance, which is operated jointly by Columbiana and Stark counties. New buildings and equipment for this institution for the same period cost $14,373.92.

This outlay for the fiscal year has just been made public by the Ohio State department of Public Welfare, and its record shows the cause of all expenditures.

The cost of expense for the operating of such institutions shows that Stark-Columbiana county home stands sixth highest, the counties with large population showing the highest cost because of the larger number of children being entered from the larger counties. The cost of operating the Jefferson county home at Yellow Creek has been placed at $18,919, and but $1,208.19 spent for new equipment and buildings.

Lucas county stands first in operating cost having spent $134,055 while Summit county spent $106,992.23.

Third place is held by Montgomery county where a total operating expense of $64,332.45 is shown, while fourth position is held by Franklin county where the expense was $55,647.18.

Fifth position is held by Mahoning county with an expenditure of $41,890.98 and sixth position is given to Stark-Columbiana county with a total operating cost of $40,397.78.

The salary of the superintendent of the Fairmount Home is placed at $1,200 per annum and that of the matron at $900 annually. A total of $14,026.76 was paid out for wages to all the employes of the Fairmount home during the last fiscal year and the food for the institution cost $7,708.29. Fuel and light cost $5,905.58 while wearing apparel for the children cost $3,286.74. The small amount of $486.33 was spent during the year for drugs and medicine while no cost has been placed under the heading of "water" and "education and recreation."

The repair to all motor vehicles at the Fairmount home for the fiscal year cost $484.09 while general repairs cost $368.29. No money was spent during the year for replacement of machinery or furniture, but farm supplies cost $1,343.33. Travel expense shows a cost of $113.92 for the 12 months of the report, while postal and telegraph charges have been placed at $181.83.

Not one cent was spent for funeral expenses during the period covered by the report. Other operating expenses have been placed at $4,392.62.

The majority of the money spent for the maintenance of this joint county institution is furnished by Stark county, as that county has more children registered at the home than does Columbiana.

The report of all Children's homes of the state has just been issued is the first given out by the state in a number of years. During the year, the average cost per capita for all children in these institutions has been placed at $337.90 gross, and the average net per capita cost is given at $294.92.

There are 58 Children's homes in Ohio, and the daily average number of inmates has been given at 3,385.

Pacific Coast Police Chief Suggests Help For Reformed Men

SANTA ANA, Cal., June.—Society is wrong in turning out men from houses of correction after a term of penal servitude without first equipping those men with trades by which to make a living without resorting to old criminal habits in order to exist.

That was the statement made here by Chief of Police R. Lee Heath, of Los Angeles, when he addressed the California division of the International Association of Criminal Identification.

In support of his plea that something be done for long-term prisoners in the way of vocational training, he cited instances where released prisoners, both men and women, finding that they are out of touch with life, and not trained for any particular line of work, become discouraged and drift back into crime, often against their own desire.

Prevent tooth decay below the gum-line

As the soil nourishes the tree roots, the gums nourish the teeth. And as the tree decays if you bare the roots, so do the teeth decay when gum shrinkage starts in.

This condition—one of the first stages of Pyorrhea—is very common and something that ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to prevent. If not checked promptly it will lead to loss of teeth and serious organic diseases.

If used in time and used consistently twice daily, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. It will preserve the gums in their pink, normal, healthy condition, safeguard your health and keep your mouth clean, fresh and wholesome.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

FAIRMOUNT CHILDREN'S HOME EXPENSES FOR YEAR $40,397

Stands Sixth in State List of Similar Institutions—Lucas County Holds First Place.

Of the $1,143,776.56 spent for the operation of children's homes in Ohio up to the close of the fiscal year, Aug. 31, 1924, $40,397 was spent by the trustees of the Fairmount Children's home at Alliance, which is operated jointly by Columbiana and Stark counties. New buildings and equipment for this institution for the same period cost $14,373.92.

This outlay for the fiscal year has just been made public by the Ohio State department of Public Welfare, and its record shows the cause of all expenditures.

The cost of expense for the operating of such institutions shows that Stark-Columbiana county home stands sixth highest, the counties with large population showing the highest cost because of the larger number of children being entered from the larger counties. The cost of operating the Jefferson county home at Yellow Creek has been placed at $18,919, and but $1,208.19 spent for new equipment and buildings.

Lucas county stands first in operating cost having spent $134,055 while Summit county spent $106,992.23.

Third place is held by Montgomery county where a total operating expense of $64,332.45 is shown, while fourth position is held by Franklin county where the expense was $55,647.18.

Fifth position is held by Mahoning county with an expenditure of $41,890.98 and sixth position is given to Stark-Columbiana county with a total operating cost of $40,397.78.

The salary of the superintendent of the Fairmount Home is placed at $1,200 per annum and that of the matron at $900 annually. A total of $14,026.76 was paid out for wages to all the employes of the Fairmount home during the last fiscal year and the food for the institution cost $7,708.29. Fuel and light cost $5,905.58 while wearing apparel for the children cost $3,286.74. The small amount of $486.33 was spent during the year for drugs and medicine while no cost has been placed under the heading of "water" and "education and recreation."

The repair to all motor vehicles at the Fairmount home for the fiscal year cost $484.09 while general repairs cost $368.29. No money was spent during the year for replacement of machinery or furniture, but farm supplies cost $1,343.33. Travel expense shows a cost of $113.92 for the 12 months of the report, while postal and telegraph charges have been placed at $181.83.

Not one cent was spent for funeral expenses during the period covered by the report. Other operating expenses have been placed at $4,392.62.

The majority of the money spent for the maintenance of this joint county institution is furnished by Stark county, as that county has more children registered at the home than does Columbiana.

The report of all Children's homes of the state has just been issued is the first given out by the state in a number of years. During the year, the average cost per capita for all children in these institutions has been placed at $337.90 gross, and the average net per capita cost is given at $294.92.

There are 58 Children's homes in Ohio, and the daily average number of inmates has been given at 3,385.

Haskin's Letter

this way the owner may charge a reasonable rate for his apartments or offices and still make a fair profit.

Comparing Operating Costs

Many methods have been devised by this association. Every year is published an office building and apartment house experience exchange. This covers every phase of operation. Tables are made showing the cost of operating a building of a certain type in a particular location in one city, and the relative cost of operating a similar building in a different city is also given. In this way the owner of an office building in Washington, D. C., can compare his operating costs with that of an owner of a like building in Portland, Oregon. From the information given relative to the owner in Portland he may get some pointers on managing his building more efficiently or more economically.

Then there is the insurance committee which is now making a study of insurance rates. This committee has found that only 11 cents out of every dollar paid in premiums comes back to the owners of first class, modern fireproof structures, for fire loss. It is consequently felt that the rates are too high and an effort is being made to devise some method of reducing them. Some owners are now using mutual fire insurance at a material saving.

One of the problems which has been taken up by several of the local associations is the removal of ashes and trash from apartment and business properties, as well as from private households, by the city authorities. All are taxed alike and all should be given equal service. In the city of Buffalo the apartment owners sued the city in the supreme court and won the decision. Both New York City and Washington, D. C., are taking steps to combat this discrimination.

One of the most important things which the association does is to make surveys of office buildings or apartment houses in order to ascertain the amount of vacant space with relation to the number of possible tenants. In this manner a man who is considering putting up a new building may be advised as to his chances for realizing on his investment.

For instance not so long ago it was found in one city that office buildings had been overbuilt. A new expensive building was under construction and the owners faced the liklihood of failure. On the other hand owners of less modern buildings stood to lose a percentage of their tenants. All around the situation was serious. There simply were not enough tenants to fill all of the available office space.

A meeting was called of all the owners of office buildings in the city and it was finally agreed that each building would give up 5 per cent of its tenants to the new one. In this manner each building was 95 per cent filled and no one suffered a heavy loss. In some cities where the underwriting and selling of bonds on such properties is clearly going beyond the needs of time, efforts will be made to acquaint the pubilc with the danger of going past the saturation point.

Advice For New Owners

Another popular and helpful branch of this association is the building planning service which was inaugurated in 1923. It was the direct outcome of many requests received at the office of the national association asking for criticism of plans for proposed new buildings.

The service operates in this fashion. When a request is received from some prospective builder a committee of five or more men is provided the client and his architect at a nominal cost. These are men who are experienced in managing properties similar to the one to be constructed, and are therefore familiar with the problems attached thereto. There is no standing committee—each building project calling for particular knowledge and experience. Also the committee is selected only in consultation with the owner.

Before the meeting of this advisory committee the owner is asked to furnish a set of tentative plans and also information regarding local conditions. The members are in this way able to make a preliminary study before they are called together. This service is valuable not only to the owner but sometimes saves the architect a lot of wasted time drafting plans which later prove unsuitable. By getting together men who have had experience in every phase of managing a building of a similar type, it is possible to design the building in the most efficient manner, and thus be able to utilize every inch of floor space. For instance, there is an office building in an eastern city which is modern but the floor plan is so poor that it is practically impossible to rent the offices. With the aid of the building planning service this might have been avoided.

This association, both in its national capacity and in its local organizations, is proving a great boon to owners of apartment houses, office buildings and business properties. It conducts research and makes available to its members the results to the end that they are able to put their properties on an efficiency basis and not run them in hit or miss fashion. The tenants benefit by receiving better service. It is one more example of the tendency of the age to do everything in the best possible way and to the best interests of all.

Popularity in National Capital Is Undimmed in Her Absence

Though Helene Heilmann, daughter of M. Heilmann, former first secretary of the French embassy in Washington, no longer resides in the capital, she still is immensely popular in the younger diplomatic set there. This is being attested by the affairs being staged in her honor while she is in the city as a visitor from San Francisco, where her father now is his country's consul.

Kidney Sufferers

Physicians have long known a remarkably effective remedy for weak bladder and overworked kidneys—a wonderful oil imported from Holland which heals and tones up the irritated organs and banishes frequent calls, tired feeling, backaches, rheumatic pains, etc., often within 24 hours. This remarkable oil has at last been put up in easy-to-take, tasteless capsules, under the name of Red Mill Haarlem Oil. It costs only 50c, and relief is guaranteed or money back. Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenrhu, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed East Liverpool druggists and druggists everywhere to dispense Allenrhu with the understanding that if his prescription does not banish every sign and symptom of the disease he will gladly return your money without comment.

ECZEMA

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

MANY people imagine that eczema or tetter needs only some external application on the skin in order to get relief. This is because the attention of the sufferer is so violently directed to the intense burning and itching which accompanies this disease. Try as they may—permanent relief will never be theirs until the disease laden blood is thoroughly cleansed.

We know there is one thing that stops eczema and that is more red-blood-cells! S.S.S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema, with all its fiery, skin digging torture, and its soul-tearing, unreachable itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting giants of Nature! S.S.S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826.

S.S.S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body strengtheners known to us mortals! When you put these facts together,—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S.S.S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it routs eczema, clears the skin, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, and gives you that more up and going appearance.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

this way the owner may charge a reasonable rate for his apartments or offices and still make a fair profit.

Comparing Operating Costs

Many methods have been devised by this association. Every year is published an office building and apartment house experience exchange. This covers every phase of operation. Tables are made showing the cost of operating a building of a certain type in a particular location in one city, and the relative cost of operating a similar building in a different city is also given. In this way the owner of an office building in Washington, D. C., can compare his operating costs with that of an owner of a like building in Portland, Oregon. From the information given relative to the owner in Portland he may get some pointers on managing his building more efficiently or more economically.

Then there is the insurance committee which is now making a study of insurance rates. This committee has found that only 11 cents out of every dollar paid in premiums comes back to the owners of first class, modern fireproof structures, for fire loss. It consequently felt that the rates are too high and an effort is being made to devise some method of reducing them. Some owners are now using mutual fire insurance at a material saving.

One of the problems which has been taken up by several of the local associations is the removal of ashes and trash from apartment and business properties, as well as from private households, by the city authorities. United States Leads Nations of World In Production of Pork

WASHINGTON, June.—The United States has as many hogs as all Europe combined, while American hog production contributes nearly two-thirds of the supply of hog products entering into international trade, according to the department of Agriculture.

The department pointed out that with hog production swinging in a fairly regular alternation from over to under-production, farmers practically never hit the market juse right with their hogs. At one stage they have many hogs to sell and make but small profits or perhaps suffer a loss on them. At another stage they have but few hogs to sell, and this is always when hogs are bringing the highest prices.

South Africa's New Tariff Policy Based On Student's Thesis

CAPETOWN, June.—South Africa's new tariff policy is based on a thesis written years ago by a South African student named Joubert at the University of Pennsylvania to obtain his degree.

That's the charge of Colonel Reitz, of South African Party, made in Parliament during a debate on the budget.

Colonel Reitz maintained the thesis was literally, word for word, the same document which the board of trade and industries issued as their original report, on which the new tariff policy was based.

Jouber's thesis, Reitz said, was prefaced with an apology that he had written it with no data available.

United States Leads Nations of World In Production of Pork

WASHINGTON, June.—The United States has as many hogs as all Europe combined, while American hog production contributes nearly two-thirds of the supply of hog products entering into international trade, according to the department of Agriculture.

The department pointed out that with hog production swinging in a fairly regular alternation from over to under-production, farmers practically never hit the market juse right with their hogs. At one stage they have many hogs to sell and make but small profits or perhaps suffer a loss on them. At another stage they have but few hogs to sell, and this is always when hogs are bringing the highest prices.

Few telegrams can be sent in parts of Africa because it is a fashion among the native women to deck themselves with necklaces and bracelets made from the copper wire necessary for the transmission of these messages.

South Africa's New Tariff Policy Based On Student's Thesis

CAPETOWN, June.—South Africa's new tariff policy is based on a thesis written years ago by a South African student named Joubert at the University of Pennsylvania to obtain his degree.

That's the charge of Colonel Reitz, of South African Party, made in Parliament during a debate on the budget.

Colonel Reitz maintained the thesis was literally, word for word, the same document which the board of trade and industries issued as their original report, on which the new tariff policy was based.

Jouber's thesis, Reitz said, was prefaced with an apology that he had written it with no data available.

Suffered for 15 years with constipation—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings relief in 3 weeks

Tried everything. Even operation. Only Kellogg's helped him.

Constipation paves the way to many harrowing diseases. But Mr. Williams' letter carries a message of cheer:

I have been using your ALL-BRAN for the past three weeks and it has done more for me than anything I have tried in the past fifteen years. . . . I was troubled with hemorrhoids for years. About 18 months ago I was operated on with very little relief. I tried everything under the sun. Then my wife suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and I say truthfully that it is the only thing that ever gave me relief.

Yours truly,
L. T. WILLIAMS,
1808 Broadway, Indianapolis, Ind.

Cleanse your system of constipation's devastating poisons with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—a bulk food that passes through the system, sweeping the intestine clean, stimulating normal, healthy action.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer returns the purchase price. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in Battle Creek, Michigan. Sold by all grocers. Served in leading hotels and restaurants.

Suffered for 15 years with constipation—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings relief in 3 weeks

Tried everything. Even operation. Only Kellogg's helped him.

Constipation paves the way to many harrowing diseases. But Mr. Williams' letter carries a message of cheer:

I have been using your ALL-BRAN for the past three weeks and it has done more for me than anything I have tried in the past fifteen years. . . . I was troubled with hemorrhoids for years. About 18 months ago I was operated on with very little relief. I tried everything under the sun. Then my wife suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and I say truthfully that it is the only thing that ever gave me relief.

Yours truly,
L. T. WILLIAMS,
1808 Broadway, Indianapolis, Ind.

Cleanse your system of constipation's devastating poisons with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—a bulk food that passes through the system, sweeping the intestine clean, stimulating normal, healthy action.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer returns the purchase price. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in Battle Creek, Michigan. Sold by all grocers. Served in leading hotels and restaurants.

Industrial League Leaders Are Toppled By Bricelin Squad

Mahl Myers' Triple Off Cebula In Fifth Sends In Three Runs

Seven-run Spurt in Next to Final Frame Proves Too Much for Chester Nine; Powell is Relieved After Hurling Great Game; Errors of Riley's Infield Count Heavily for Visitors.

West Virginia rivals of the City Industrial Baseball league battled each other to a finish at Newell park on Monday evening, and Laughlin, playing bang-up ball as darkness enveloped the field, came from behind amid the plaudits of thenr henchmen and defeated Chester, the organization's leaders, 8 to 3.

Mahl Myers, long a minor league star, obeying the perhaps unheard-of admonition of Mrs. Myers, sitting in an adjacent automobile, to "line one out, just like you use to do," did that very thing in the fifth inning. When he stopped he was on third base, a triple to his credit and the bag occupants, three in all, had scored, putting his team in the lead and giving it the victory.

The swat was made off M. Cebula, who had supplanted Powell with the score tied, 3 to 3. By reason of two miscues by P. Cebula and L. McMath, DeLong and Reese who made the only two safeties thus far allowed by Pitcher Powell had scored.

Tisher and Riser, batting for Werkheirser, made the respective drives that P. Cebula and L. McMath booted, scoring DeLong and Reese. McConnell had bunted safely, filling the bases. Myers thus faced the star Chester twirler, just starting his relief role. He drove out a line drive that P. Bennett chased for rods, but the bases had been cleared of all but himself.

Babb struck out as realy did Watson, but W. McMath missed the third strike, it being a wild pitch, and Myers counted. Sayers released a Texas leaguer which scored Watson, who had reached second on his inability to land on his third strike.

In the Chester half of the sixth with fast approaching darkness, Digman and Jackson singled their way on, but the former was caught stretching his way to third on the latter's rap. Potts, batting for C. Marshall, flew to Sayers and Seevers, former minor league pitcher and now the Chester police chief, gave the end of the contest a dramatic aspect as, elongated of form and broad of shoulder, he squared himself at the plate to swat for W. McMath, but he "swung and missed" and the game was over.

The contest, played before a crowd larger than those attending the "baby world series" engagements, hitherto the largest attended games in local amateur league history, stood out with the loval rooting of the devotees of both clubs. More than 150 automobiles surrounded the playing field, the occasion perhaps bringing together more motors than any previous diamond game in these parts.

The clash appealed also in that DeLong, the former brilliant Chester catcher wore the windpad for Laughlin while Digman for whom he was traded played first against his former mates. Both had one hit in three times up. Both scored a run. Digman accepted six and DeLong nine chances without a slip-up. By one of the ironies of fate DeLong, generously cheered when he first came to the bat was retired in a fine catch of a foul by Digman.

Another player who started the season with Chester. Werkheiser, played left for Laughlin and really saved the contest for his club by a fine catch of Marshall's line fly with two men on and two gone. Had these runs scored, the morale of Laughlin, with a four-run lead against them might not have stood the test.

The contest, too, saw Reese and Powell, the old E. M. Knowles pitchers of other days, pitted against each other. Until the fateful fifth Powell had not allowed a single hit and had the better of his old teammates. A fast double fly by L. McMath, Digman and C. Marshall had greatly aided him.

Reese, barring a pass and a bad throw by him in the fourth inig, held his opponents. He had a hit, walked once and scored twice.

Jackson led both club players in hitting, having a perfect record with a double and two singles in two times up.

How They Scored

Reese, walking in the third, went to second on Tisher's sacrifice, Powell to L. McMath and to third as P. Cebula threw wildly to Digman on Werkheiser's drive. McConnell's long fly to F. Marshall scored him.

P. Bennett, walking in the fourth, reached third and P. Cebula second when the latter bunted and Powell threw over Myer's head into center field. Digman drove to Myers, who booted the ball and both scored. Jackson singled to middle and reached second on the throw to stop Digman at third. C. Marshall flew to McConnell, scoring Digman. McConnell threw perfectly and DeLong blocked excellently, somersaulting Digman, but the catcher dropped the ball, permitting the runner to pull himself together and touch the plate.

Howard Ehmke, Red Sox hurler, doled out five hits to the Cleveland Indians and Boston won, 3 to 1.

Jupe Pluvius crossed his fingers in the third inning and the game between Washington and Chicago was called off.

LOCALS DEFEATED AT STEUBENVILLE

The East Liverpool baseball club was defeated in a slugging bee at Steubenville Sunday afternoon, the count being 12 to 8.

Three East Liverpool pitchers were pounded for 18 blows, and the locals collected 14 off one Steubenville moundsman.

Barr started on the slab for the potters, but was relieved by Deshler, who, in turn, gave way to Pollock.

THEY OUGHT TO PUT UP EARNEST BATTLE

For Loser in Wills-Weinert Battle Faces Oblivion; Winner Merry Future

By Norman E. Brown.

There is no title at stake in the approaching battle between Harry Wills and Charley Weinert, next week. Neither one of these men has set the boxing world on fire.

And yet the bout should be one of the most interesting ones of recent years for one reason alone.

That is that both men should be out to win as decisively and as quickly as possible.

Wills, perennial negro challenger for Jack Dempsey's title, must lick Weinert and lick him good or forfeit whatever legitimate and paper claims he has to a chance at the championship.

A victory for Weinert will place him back in the fistic sun with a loud and startling bang. A defeat will spell the end of his ring career.

In other words, both fighters have everything to gain in victory and face oblivion if they lose. What greater incentive to win could be conceived?

The trouble with most of these highly touted battles of late has been that the participants realized that said fights were just in a day's work. Clever press agenting can cover up many defects. Popularity rather than cold-fact records, tells in the majority of cases.

But neither Wills nor Weinert has a popularity that will stand a defeat at the hands of the other. And neither has records that will back up such a blow.

Wills claimed, in explaining his poor showing against the veteran war horse, Bartley Madden, last June, that he was seving his hands.

The negro used the same excuse to explain his inability to drop Luis Firpo, Busted Bull of the Pampus, risking loss of a bout with Dempsey through injury to his hands and loss of the aforementioned chance through taking a sock on the chin from Mr. Weinert.

Weinert, starting his comeback last year, included Firpo in his list of adversaries and gave that gentelman a royal battle for 12 rounds. Which gives him about as much claim to a title match right now as Wills has.

A victory over Wills will send Weinert hurtling over the heads of a dozen other logical and illogical contenders to the front row of chairs in the waiting room outside Dempsey's headquarters.

So there ought to be an air of earnestness in the Wills-Weinert affair. Which alone will make it an unusual bout in these days of dancing acts and ring Charlestons.

Manning Steals Home With Deciding Run in Fourth.

Dashing down the final stretch for a clean steal at home in the fourth, Denver Manning, gardner of the Wellsville C. & P. nine, provided fans who witnessed the clash with K. T. K., with the big thrill of the contest and his club with a victory. The contest was staged at Columbian park. The count was 4 to 3.

Manning also led his team with the bat, driving out two doubles in three times up. C. Strobel, of K. T. K., contributed a double and a single in three appearances, his two blows being exactly 50 per cent of the potters' hits.

The contest developed a pitchers' battle between Patterson and the veteran Hi Allison crafty and capable. Patterson allowed but four hits and the latter six. Both fanned three men, but Allison was a trifle wild at times, passing four to Patterson's one.

Both catchers, P. Pollock and C. Morgan, had an even record, as far as stolen bases were concerned, each purloining four.

The contest was the second won by the Wellsville nine this season, its initial contest having been made in the inaugural tilt.

McShane, sterling middle gardner of the Katies, held the feature fielding play of the day, taking a long fly in deep center.

GIVES UP QUEST FOR SPEED TITLE

De Paolo Plans Belgium Trip After Altoona Race.

ALTOONA, Pa., June 9.—Peter DePaolo, winner of this year's Indianapolis classic and leader in the battle for 1925 championship honors of the racing world, will make his last appearance in the United States at the Altoona speedway on June 13 in the 250-mile speed duel, departing immediately afterwards for Belgium to compete in the European Grand Prix, and not returning until fall.

Rumored since last week, news of De Paolos intentions to compete in the greatest of European events became definitely known today in a telegram from him to speedway officials here, stating that he would arrive promptly to prepare for the renowned automobile contest here on Flag Day, but would leave immediately after the race for New York, where his costly eight-cylinder racing machine would be placed upon a trans-Atlantic liner for Belgium, where the renowned road event is to be held on July 5.

DePaolos announcement has caused an uproar in racing circles, as it means that he will practically abdicate the speed championship crown for the year, already almost assured to him, as his departure will mean his absence from the opening of the new Baltimore-Washington track at Laurel, Md., on July 11. Under the rigid rules of the contest board of the American Automobile association, all five leaders in championship standing absolutely must appear at every one of the board track classics and at Indianapolis.

The only exception ever made to this stringent law of the A. A. A. was given two years ago to the late Jimmy Murphy, who failed to appear here at the opening of the Altoona track due to his presence at the inaugural on the huge concrete course at Monza, Italy, following the special invitation of Mussolini. Even then they hesitated until all of the other great speed pilots gathered here petitioned in a group for leniency due to the special circumstances.

No details have yet been available, but DePaolo, who is given the odds to win here next Saturday afternoon in the 250-mile grind against the fastests cars and greatest drivers of the world, is expected to announce his complete plans tomorrow upon arrival with his car and corps of personal mechanics.

DEMPSEY MAY DEFEND NOSE EARLY IN FALL

Proposed Tunney-Wills go Expected to Provide Opponent.

By George Barry.

NEW YORK, June 9.—A heavyweight championship fight for next fall, with Jack Dempsey defending his newly made nose, is more than a possibility, according to deep laid plans now under discussion by the people who have promoted championship fights.

The removal of Tom Gibbons from the list of contenders has simplified matters exceedingly. So long as Tom was undefeated, and so long as the memory of his gallant 15-round stand against the champion at Shelby was still green, a championship fight could hardly be figured without taking Tom into consideration.

But Gene Tunney, a vastly improved man, knocked out the St. Paul contender in 12 rounds, and thereby gained a technical right at least to be considered an opponent for Dempsey, and on June 19, when Harry Wills meets Charley Weinert, the situation will be further clarified.

The predominant opinion in local fight circles is that Wills is going to shoot with everything he has in his bout with Weinert in order to prove his right to a meeting with Dempsey. And the opinion is that the Senegambian will win by a couple of city blocks.

This process of elimination, if it works out according to calculations, will inevitably bring Tunney and Wills together, the winner to have a crack at Dempsey. A Willis-Tunney fight on Labor day is one of the things talked about.

Billy Gibson, who manages Tunney, said today he plans to "make Jack Dempsey decide whether he is a fighter or an actor."

"Fight Wills?" said Gibson. "Sure we will fight Wills. That is exactly what we plan to do providing Dempsey stays in his shell, and providing, too, that Harry is able to dispose of Weinert on June 19."

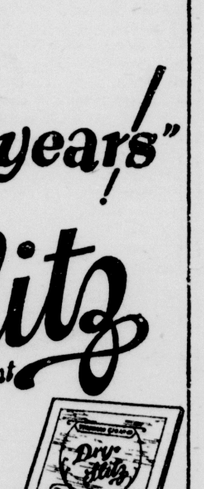

Rogers Hornsby, prince of batters, won the game for the St. Louis Cardinals against Brooklyn by singling in the ninth for the needed run. Score, 6 to 5.

Industrial League Leaders Are Toppled By Bricelin Squad

Mahl Myers' Triple Off Cebula In Fifth Sends In Three Runs

Seven-run Spurt in Next to Final Frame Proves Too Much for Chester Nine; Powell is Relieved After Hurling Great Game; Errors of Riley's Infield Count Heavily for Visitors.

West Virginia rivals of the City Industrial Baseball league battled each other to a finish at Newell park on Monday evening, and Laughlin, playing bang-up ball as darkness enveloped the field, came from behind amid the plaudits of thenr henchmen and defeated Chester, the organization's leaders, 8 to 3.

Mahl Myers, long a minor league star, obeying the perhaps unheard-of admonition of Mrs. Myers, sitting in an adjacent automobile, to "line one out, just like you use to do," did that very thing in the fifth inning. When he stopped he was on third base, a triple to his credit and the bag occupants, three in all, had scored, putting his team in the lead and giving it the victory.

The swat was made off M. Cebula, who had supplanted Powell with the score tied, 3 to 3. By reason of two miscues by P. Cebula and L. McMath, DeLong and Reese who made the only two safeties thus far allowed by Pitcher Powell had scored.

Tisher and Riser, batting for Werkheirser, made the respective drives that P. Cebula and L. McMath booted, scoring DeLong and Reese. McConnell had bunted safely, filling the bases. Myers thus faced the star Chester twirler, just starting his relief role. He drove out a line drive that P. Bennett chased for rods, but the bases had been cleared of all but himself.

Babb struck out as realy did Watson, but W. McMath missed the third strike, it being a wild pitch, and Myers counted. Sayers released a Texas leaguer which scored Watson, who had reached second on his inability to land on his third strike.

In the Chester half of the sixth with fast approaching darkness, Digman and Jackson singled their way on, but the former was caught stretching his way to third on the latter's rap. Potts, batting for C. Marshall, flew to Sayers and Seevers, former minor league pitcher and now the Chester police chief, gave the end of the contest a dramatic aspect as, elongated of form and broad of shoulder, he squared himself at the plate to swat for W. McMath, but he "swung and missed" and the game was over.

The contest, played before a crowd larger than those attending the "baby world series" engagements, hitherto the largest attended games in local amateur league history, stood out with the loyal rooting of the devotees of both clubs. More than 150 automobiles surrounded the playing field, the occasion perhaps bringing together more motors than any previous diamond game in these parts.

The clash appealed also in that DeLong, the former brilliant Chester catcher wore the windpad for Laughlin while Digman for whom he was traded played first against his former mates. Both had one hit in three times up. Both scored a run. Digman accepted six and DeLong nine chances without a slip-up. By one of the ironies of fate DeLong, generously cheered when he first came to the bat was retired in a fine catch of a foul by Digman.

Another player who started the season with Chester, Werkheiser, played left for Laughlin and really saved the contest for his club by a fine catch of Marshall's line fly with two men on and two gone. Had these runs scored, the morale of Laughlin, with a four-run lead against them might not have stood the test.

The contest, too, saw Reese and Powell, the old E. M. Knowles pitchers of other days, pitted against each other. Until the fateful fifth Powell had not allowed a single hit and had the better of his old teammates. A fast double fly by L. McMath, Digman and C. Marshall had greatly aided him.

Reese, barring a pass and a bad throw by him in the fourth inning, held his opponents. He had a hit, walked once and scored twice.

Jackson led both club players in hitting, having a perfect record with a double and two singles in two times up.

How They Scored

Reese, walking in the third, went to second on Tisher's sacrifice, Powell to L. McMath and to third as P. Cebula threw wildly to Digman on Werkheiser's drive. McConnell's long fly to F. Marshall scored him.

P. Bennett, walking in the fourth, reached third and P. Cebula second when the latter bunted and Powell threw over Myer's head into center field. Digman drove to Myers, who booted the ball and both scored. Jackson singled to middle and reached second on the throw to stop Digman at third. C. Marshall flew to McConnell, scoring Digman. McConnell threw perfectly and DeLong blocked excellently, somersaulting Digman, but the catcher dropped the ball, permitting the runner to pull himself together and touch the plate.

Howard Ehmke, Red Sox hurler, doled out five hits to the Cleveland Indians and Boston won, 3 to 1.

Jupe Pluvius crossed his fingers in the third inning and the game between Washington and Chicago was called off.

THEY OUGHT TO PUT UP EARNEST BATTLE

For Loser in Wills-Weinert Battle Faces Oblivion; Winner Merry Future

By Norman E. Brown.

There is no title at stake in the approaching battle between Harry Wills and Charley Weinert, next week. Neither one of these men has set the boxing world on fire.

And yet the bout should be one of the most interesting ones of recent years for one reason alone.

That is that both men should be out to win as decisively and as quickly as possible.

Wills, perennial negro challenger for Jack Dempsey's title, must lick Weinert and lick him good or forfeit whatever legitimate and paper claims he has to a chance at the championship.

A victory for Weinert will place him back in the fistic sun with a loud and startling bang. A defeat will spell the end of his ring career.

In other words, both fighters have everything to gain in victory and face oblivion if they lose. What greater incentive to win could be conceived?

The trouble with most of these highly touted battles of late has been that the participants realized that said fights were just in a day's work. Clever press agenting can cover up many defects. Popularity rather than cold-fact records, tells in the majority of cases.

But neither Wills nor Weinert has a popularity that will stand a defeat at the hands of the other. And neither has records that will back up such a blow.

Wills claimed, in explaining his poor showing against the veteran war horse, Bartley Madden, last June, that he was seving his hands.

The negro used the same excuse to explain his inability to drop Luis Firpo, Busted Bull of the Pampus, risking loss of a bout with Dempsey through injury to his hands and loss of the aforementioned chance through taking a sock on the chin from Mr. Weinert.

Weinert, starting his comeback last year, included Firpo in his list of adversaries and gave that gentelman a royal battle for 12 rounds. Which gives him about as much claim to a title match right now as Wills has.

A victory over Wills will send Weinert hurtling over the heads of a dozen other logical and illogical contenders to the front row of chairs in the waiting room outside Dempsey's headquarters.

So there ought to be an air of earnestness in the Wills-Weinert affair. Which alone will make it an unusual bout in these days of dancing acts and ring Charlestons.

GIVES UP QUEST FOR SPEED TITLE

De Paolo Plans Belgium Trip After Altoona Race.

ALTOONA, Pa., June 9.—Peter DePaolo, winner of this year's Indianapolis classic and leader in the battle for 1925 championship honors of the racing world, will make his last appearance in the United States at the Altoona speedway on June 13 in the 250-mile speed duel, departing immediately afterwards for Belgium to compete in the European Grand Prix, and not returning until fall.

Rumored since last week, news of De Paolos intentions to compete in the greatest of European events became definitely known today in a telegram from him to speedway officials here, stating that he would arrive promptly to prepare for the renowned automobile contest here on Flag Day, but would leave immediately after the race for New York, where his costly eight-cylinder racing machine would be placed upon a trans-Atlantic liner for Belgium, where the renowned road event is to be held on July 5.

DePaolos announcement has caused an uproar in racing circles, as it means that he will practically abdicate the speed championship crown for the year, already almost assured to him, as his departure will mean his absence from the opening of the new Baltimore-Washington track at Laurel, Md., on July 11. Under the rigid rules of the contest board of the American Automobile association, all five leaders in championship standing absolutely must appear at every one of the board track classics and at Indianapolis.

The only exception ever made to this stringent law of the A. A. A. was given two years ago to the late Jimmy Murphy, who failed to appear here at the opening of the Altoona track due to his presence at the inaugural on the huge concrete course at Monza, Italy, following the special invitation of Mussolini. Even then they hesitated until all of the other great speed pilots gathered here petitioned in a group for leniency due to the special circumstances.

No details have yet been available, but DePaolo, who is given the odds to win here next Saturday afternoon in the 250-mile grind against the fastests cars and greatest drivers of the world, is expected to announce his complete plans tomorrow upon arrival with his car and corps of personal mechanics.

DEMPSEY MAY DEFEND NOSE EARLY IN FALL

Proposed Tunney-Wills go Expected to Provide Opponent.

By George Barry.

NEW YORK, June 9.—A heavyweight championship fight for next fall, with Jack Dempsey defending his newly made nose, is more than a possibility, according to deep laid plans now under discussion by the people who have promoted championship fights.

The removal of Tom Gibbons from the list of contenders has simplified matters exceedingly. So long as Tom was undefeated, and so long as the memory of his gallant 15-round stand against the champion at Shelby was still green, a championship fight could hardly be figured without taking Tom into consideration.

But Gene Tunney, a vastly improved man, knocked out the St. Paul contender in 12 rounds, and thereby gained a technical right at least to be considered an opponent for Dempsey, and on June 19, when Harry Wills meets Charley Weinert, the situation will be further clarified.

The predominant opinion in local fight circles is that Wills is going to shoot with everything he has in his bout with Weinert in order to prove his right to a meeting with Dempsey. And the opinion is that the Senegambian will win by a couple of city blocks.

This process of elimination, if it works out according to calculations, will inevitably bring Tunney and Wills together, the winner to have a crack at Dempsey. A Willis-Tunney fight on Labor day is one of the things talked about.

Billy Gibson, who manages Tunney, said today he plans to "make Jack Dempsey decide whether he is a fighter or an actor."

"Fight Wills?" said Gibson. "Sure we will fight Wills. That is exactly what we plan to do providing Dempsey stays in his shell, and providing, too, that Harry is able to dispose of Weinert on June 19."

Rogers Hornsby, prince of batters, won the game for the St. Louis Cardinals against Brooklyn by singling in the ninth for the needed run. Score, 6 to 5.

Surgeons Give Chinless Man Masterful Jaw, Says Lancet

Orthodonics is Surgical Term for Facial Character Transformation.

NEW YORK—There is hope for the man with a receding chin.

No longer need he travel life's byways depressed by the thought that Nature has stamped him as a being of weak character.

Through the science of orthodentics, he may take his place in the world as a man among men—a person with a virile and aggressive chin.

New York physicians and surgeons are discussing an article which explains this surgical revelation and which appeared in the last issue of The Lancet, the authoritative English medical journal.

Jaw Forward.

"By means of a special plate," says The Lancet, "it is possible to throw the lower jaw forward, so that the molar teeth meet in their proper position."

This plate has the effect of making the patient bite forward, with the result, in most cases, the article asserts, that the receding chin eventually becomes normal.

A receding chin, The Lancet points out, is of great moment to whoever has one.

"The individual of strong character," continues The Lancet, "or who is favored by fortune, may be able to survive the handicap of a receding chin, but to many a lesser person it must often prove a real hindrance in the stress of competition."

The Lancet finds that a person with a receding chin, "being regarded as weak, is treated as such and may end up by becoming what his fellows assume him to be."

Ancient Area.

Responsibility for the belief that a protruding chin represents character is carried back by The Lancet to the beginning of animal life.

"The prosnathism (projecting jaw) of primitive man and his ape-like forebears carried with it an appearance of ferocity. In time, as man became more civilized, this impression of animal power, associated with massive jaws, became transmuted into an impression that a strong jaw represented strength of will and decision."

Police Identification Card for Every Man In Nation Proposed

SANTA ANA, Cal., June.—If George K. Home, until recently chief of detectives at Los Angeles, had his way, every adult American would carry a police identification card.

He advocated the nation-wide civil identification card system at the meeting here of the California division of the Association for Criminal Identification.

In dealing with the criminal element, the police officer explained, the registration system would go far in checking and handicapping the movements and activities of burglars hold-up men, swindlers, automobile thieves, degenerates and their kind, who are now moving from one place to another without any check or restraint whatever.

Cat, Alligator Chums.

UPTON, Mass., June.—A cat and an alligator are real clubby. A twelve-inch baby alligator was sent to Mrs. Henry Atwood by Mrs. Faith Peace, of Miami, Florida.

Mrs. Peace was formerly a resident here.

The alligator, which came by express, stood the journey well.

Mrs. Atwood's cat became very friendly with the little reptile of the Southland. They play together like old friends.

Surgeons Give Chinless Man Masterful Jaw, Says Lancet

Orthodonics is Surgical Term for Facial Character Transformation.

NEW YORK—There is hope for the man with a receding chin.

No longer need he travel life's byways depressed by the thought that Nature has stamped him as a being of weak character.

Through the science of orthodontics, he may take his place in the world as a man among men—a person with a virile and aggressive chin.

New York physicians and surgeons are discussing an article which explains this surgical revelation and which appeared in the last issue of The Lancet, the authoritative English medical journal.

Jaw Forward.

"By means of a special plate," says The Lancet, "it is possible to throw the lower jaw forward, so that the molar teeth meet in their proper position."

This plate has the effect of making the patient bite forward, with the result, in most cases, the article asserts, that the receding chin eventually becomes normal.

A receding chin, The Lancet points out, is of great moment to whoever has one.

"The individual of strong character," continues The Lancet, "or who is favored by fortune, may be able to survive the handicap of a receding chin, but to many a lesser person it must often prove a real hindrance in the stress of competition."

The Lancet finds that a person with a receding chin, "being regarded as weak, is treated as such and may end up by becoming what his fellows assume him to be."

Ancient Area.

Responsibility for the belief that a protruding chin represents character is carried back by The Lancet to the beginning of animal life.

"The prosnathism (projecting jaw) of primitive man and his ape-like forebears carried with it an appearance of ferocity. In time, as man became more civilized, this impression of animal power, associated with massive jaws, became transmuted into an impression that a strong jaw represented strength of will and decision."

Police Identification Card for Every Man In Nation Proposed

SANTA ANA, Cal., June.—If George K. Home, until recently chief of detectives at Los Angeles, had his way, every adult American would carry a police identification card.

He advocated the nation-wide civil identification card system at the meeting here of the California division of the Association for Criminal Identification.

In dealing with the criminal element, the police officer explained, the registration system would go far in checking and handicapping the movements and activities of burglars hold-up men, swindlers, automobile thieves, degenerates and their kind, who are now moving from one place to another without any check or restraint whatever.

Cat, Alligator Chums.

UPTON, Mass., June.—A cat and an alligator are real clubby. A twelve-inch baby alligator was sent to Mrs. Henry Atwood by Mrs. Faith Peace, of Miami, Florida.

Mrs. Peace was formerly a resident here.

The alligator, which came by express, stood the journey well.

Mrs. Atwood's cat became very friendly with the little reptile of the Southland. They play together like old friends.

Speech and Thought Make Our Lives.
Thinking Is Real Power.
Too Little of It.
How to Die Young.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

We human beings ceased to be animals and became men when we first used thought in place of brute strength.

At some distant day in our development the animal that preceded us here made up its feeble mind that there was something better than strength, teeth and claws, and began to use its little brain.

This animal, our ancestor, the so-called pithecanthropos, or monkey-man, observed the saber-toothed tiger ripping open the stomach of a monster three times its size, watched the mammoth ploughing through the swamps, crushing down trees; observed the great reptiles and all other proofs of brute force, and, without realizing it, this ancestor said vaguely to himself:

"I can't compete when it comes to teeth and claws, weight and bulk. I am a feeble thing in this jumble of power and battle. I must think the way out."

And so our real human life began.

Our ancestor, with a forehead one-quarter of an inch high, a jaw that stuck out as far as the jaw of a gorilla, with teeth bigger than any of those of any bulldog, and with long arms dropping below the knees, that could crush a man of today with ease, this old ancestor of ours decided that he would get out of the battle for supremacy of muscle and teeth and see what could be done with the brain and with thinking.

You can imagine how the thinking process started.

It was hardly real thought at first, just a kind of intelligent impulse. Our ancestor sat up in a tree rubbing his nose and looking at the saber-toothed tiger that couldn't climb.

He saw the shining teeth, six inches long perhaps, and he didn't like the look of them.

Later, when the tiger was gone, he climbed down and picked up a sharp flint, 10 inches long, heavier, sharper and harder than the tiger's tooth.

He held this in his hand, struck his brother with it, killed the brother, and felt highly satisfied with his intellectual accomplishment.

He had discovered that a tooth made of stone held at the end of an arm four foot long, could do as much damage as the tooth of a tiger.

So he fastened his sharp flint to the end of a piece of wood, sat in the tree, stabbed the tiger in the back as

North Pole Flyers Believed on Way To Cape Columbia

COPENHAGEN, June 9.—Reports from Oslo today indicated meterologists and representatives of the Dornier aeroplane works at Spitzbergen now believe the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole flyers are endeavoring to reach Cape Columbia. At that point relief could be sent to the party by a steamer expedition.

This belief is based on statements by members of the Amundsen expedition still at Spitzbergen who said Amundsen told them that if he did not return by aeroplane within 14 days, or was forced to descned, he would make his way to Cape Columbia.

ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON WITH PRESIDENT COOLIDGE, June 9.—President Coolidge, homeward bound from the greatest reception he ever received in his political career, was traveling eastward today towards Washington, there to stay out two weeks before embarking on a summer vacation that will keep him in New England until after Labor Day.

During the 27 hours that he stayed in the twin cities of Minnesota, where he featured the hundredth anniversary of the first Norwegian settlement in America. President Coolidge witnessed the largest turnout in his honor that he has ever experienced. Approximately 60,000 people were jammed in the race track of the state fairground, to hear his speech. Every street of St. Paul and Minneapolis that he traversed was lined solidly with citizens of the Northwest.

Demonstrates Popularity.

The Coolidge invasion of the wheat belt was a personal triumph in two days. First he successfully demonstarted his popularity in that section of the country regarded as a LaFollette stronghold, and second, he wiped out the odium of his only other attempt to address the people of the Twin Cities.

In 1922 Mr. Coolidge, then vice-president, visited Minneapolis in behalf of the re-election of Senator Frank B. Kellogg, competing with an exhausting heat and the prospect of a horse race he was booed down and never completed his speech. Yesterday 60,000 people jammed the fairground and, oblivious to a howling wind and an intermitent rain, cheered the pres-

MIDLAND ROAD BIDS OPENED IN HARRISBURG BY HIGHWAY CHIEF

State Line Work Will Be Let in Two Sections.

8,448-FOOT JOB

Four Estimates are Submitted on Creek Bridge.

Bids for the improvement of the stretch of roadway between the western corporate limits of Midland and the Ohio State line were opened in Harrisburg today by the Pennsylvania State Highway department.

The road will be constructed in two sections—one from Midland to the upper end of Smiths Ferry and the other from the borough of Glasgow to the state line, the total distance being 8,448 feet, or one and three-fifths miles The road will be of concrete construction, 18 and 20 feet in width.

That part of the highway within the Smiths Ferry and Glasgow boroughs will not be improved until next year, when the traction company will change its tracks to the upper side of the railroad right of way. A new hard surfaced road will then be built to connect the two sections of improvement but in the meantime traffic will follow the main street through Smiths Ferry.

Four bids for the construction of a new concrete span over Beaver Creek to replace the old iron bridge now being used, were opened by the county commissioners last week.

The lowest bid was submitted by D. R. Purdy, Clinton, Pa., whose offer was $61,257.84 with a 360-day time limit. Walter S. Rae was the next lowest, with an offer of $63,000 for 160-day time limit. The Ferris Engineering company, Pittsburgh, offered to build the bridge in 140 days for $64,400 while D. F. Nellis & Son Company of East Liverpool submitted a bid of $65,461 with a 210-day limit.

The bridge will be built at the same time as the road.

PROPOSED BOND ISSUE TO PAY FOR EIGHTH ST. JOB GIVEN O. K.

City May Authorize $45,000 Flotation for Improvement.

HAMILTON RULES

Caucus Session of Council is Called Tonight.

The city of East Liverpool may issue bonds to the extent of $45,000 for the improvement of West Eighth street, County Auditor Charles Hamilton has advised Solicitor Harry L. Brokaw, it developed today.

A caucus session of the council has been called for 6:30 o'clock tonight to consider the proposal. Legislation, authorizing Service Director A. G. Ellis to enter into a contract with the county commissioners, the Liverpool township board of trustees and the Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company, to share in the cost of the improvement, probably will be enacted at the meeting of the solons Friday evening.

Township Ready to Act

The improvement of West Eighth street, from the West End school to the western corporate limits, will cost about $75,000, which includes private right-of-way which must be acquired to widen the street. The township trustees have agreed to grade and hard surface Shadyside avenue from Eighth street to the city limits with brick, concrete or asphalt, if the city completes the Eighth street job.

The county commissioners will put $20,000 in the Eighth street work while the traction company will contribute $15,000. The street car company has asked their payments be extended over a period of five years, interest on the money to be paid at a rate of six percent. This leaves the city's share in the improvement at $40,000, of which $10,000 will be taken from the street and maintenance fund, the remaining $30,000 to be covered by bonds. Bonds must also be issued for the traction company's share, which will be paid back, however, at the end of five years.

Council discussed the proposed improvement at the last meeting, but de-

TENNESSEE'S LEGISLATORS DECLARE THEY PASSED FAMOUS EVOLUTION LAW BECAUSE THEY BELIEVE THEORY "INTERFERES WITH HOLY BIBLE"

(Editor's Note: Nothing since the introduction of the Einstein theory of relativity has aroused more discussion in the scientific world than the indictment and approaching trial of a Tennessee high school teacher for instructing his pupils in the theory of the evolution of man.

Scientists who have long accepted Darwinism have perplexedly asked themselves: "Why was this law passed?"

The answer is contained in the story below).

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES,
(Copyright, 1925, by I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, June 9.—Tennessee's famous evolution law, under which young Prof. "Johnny" Scopes is to be tried and probably convicted for teaching high school students that they evolved from lower forms of life through natural processes, was passed because an overwhelming majority of Tennessee's law-makers believe that the theory of evolution "interferes with the Bible."

And it would pass again if put to the test. The uproar that the law has caused, and the ridicule heaped upon it by scientists and men of learning generally, have in no way operated to change the minds of Tennessee legislators on this point.

Afraid of Public Sentiment.

These facts were disclosed today when International News Service invited a number of Tennessee legislators to explain their votes on the measure. Opinions on both sides were sought, and the replies afford an interesting insight into basic, underlying motives that inspired the adoption of this much talked of legislation.

One legislator, Senator W. Mack Fuqua, of Nashville, who did not vote for or against because he was denied the privilege of debating it, frankly declared the law was passed because the representatives of the rural districts were afraid to vote "no" and then explain it back home where fundamentalism is taught from the cradle.

"My objection to the bill," he said, "was not based upon whether the theory of evolution was inconsistent with the Bible, but rather on the principle that church and state should be separate for governmental reasons. Their attempted unity has left blood-stained tracks thru the pages of European history.

"Most legislators supported the measure because they were afraid of a possible public sentiment, especially in the rural districts where religious principles are more devoutly entertained and exercised. It was easier to vote for it than to explain to the people back home.

"Lack of moral courage to vote convictions was largely responsible for the passage of this measure, as for many others."

But Senator Fuqua was woefully in the minority. The bill passed the senate 20 to 6, and the house 89 to 3, illustrating the unanimity of Tennessee's belief in this matter.

Some of the explanations of votes follow:

Senator W. P. Monroe, Maynardsville—"Modernism as represented by evolution denies the scriptural scheme of creation. If it could be established that one part of the Bible is a myth or fake, it would naturally follow that the word of God as a whole is foundationless. I recognize in evolution an effort to destroy the Bible and its influence, despite the fact that what we are today we owe to the Bible and the teachings of Christ. It was upon this hypothesis that I favored the bill."

Senator S. T. Doty, Springville—"I voted for the evolution law because the Bible plainly explains how man was created."

Senator W. French Grubb, Chattanooga—"I voted for the measure because I believe in the origin of man as taught in the Bible and because the state has the absolute right to direct the expenditure of its public funds in the education of children."

Lawmaker Raps Dr. Butler.

Senator Roy C. Wallace, Lenoir City—"I voted for the law because I thought it a good one. Every intellectual person believes in evolution in many forms so long as it does not conflict with the Holy Bible. I notice that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbus University, has stated that enactment of this law was a show of ignorance. All Tennesseans would be rather more or less ignorant of some things than be dubbed an educated fool. I suppose he thinks it was a bunch of ignoramuses who led the nation in volunteering in all our wars. I suppose he thinks it was a bunch of ignoramuses who helped break the Hindenburg line.

"The time has come when Tennessee will protect her young from the influence of such educated fools."

Senator Harvey Whitefield, Clarksville—"I voted for the bill as a means to prevent teaching that the Bible is not true and also to conform to the will of the majority of my constituents. The bill provides that nothing should be taught that man evolved from a lower animal. I believe as my colleagues did that the Genesis story of creation is true and that Jesus was divine."

Senator Hugh T. Bennett, Fruitland—"I do not believe in the theory of evolution as applied to man. All things are reproduced after their kind. Most people in Tennessee believe the biblical account of the creation of man. Destroy the faith in God's word and you have destroyed all that is best in civilization. Teachers of evolution should not be permitted to discuss immoral ideas in the guise of science."

Senator D. D. Humphreys, Hohenwald—"This law plainly provides it is unlawful to teach in schools supported by the state any theory that contradicts the origin of man as taught in the Bible. We have the right to say what shall not be taught. The act in no way interferes with any religious idea in the state. If man actually came from the monkey I do not want such an idea taught our children. This is being done by some teachers in Tennessee and for these reasons I voted for the bill."

Explain Votes Against Bill.

Four of the six senators who voted against the bill explained their reasons as follows:

Senator (Dr.) C. Benton King, Brownsville—"I voted against the bill because I thought it was stupid to try to control thought by law. The theory of evolution does not discredit the Bible. Any attempt to impede search for truths is an assault on all education and therefore intolerable."

Senator John H. Trice, Jackson—"I voted against the bill because I believed its enactment into law unnecessary, would defeat the object sought, and would inflame the spirit of bigotry and demagogism."

Senator Cicil Sims, Nashville: "I voted against the bill because I believe in the fundamental principle of the separation of church and state. This bill was but first step, as evidenced by a companion bill, to prohibit Jews from teaching in the public schools. This was defeated. I do not approve of legislative effort, direct or indirect, concerning the truth or error of either evolution or Genesis. The Christian religion has survived centuries without legislative assistance and needs none now. Believing the Biblical injunction, 'Know the truth and the truth shall make you free,' and the Jeffersonian principle of freedom of thought so long as truth is left free to combat error, I opposed the bill."

Senator Frank D. Fuller, Memphis: "I opposed the bill because I saw no need for a conflict between science and the Bible. The passage of such regulatory laws is an insult to intelligence, and as a rule utterly fails to accomplish the purpose desired. I predicted if the bill became a law its effect would be to stimulate rather than retard the study and teaching of evolution, and that people who had never given the subject a moment's thought would become ardent evolutionists and attempt to propound theories of which they had not the slightest intelligent conception. If one desired to broadcast evolution to the four corners of the earth the passage of this bill would be an active means to this end."

ident to the echo throughout a 45-minute address. On his way to the fairground, 16 miles of streets were packed with flag-waving, enthusiastic citizens.

The presidential party is returning to Washington aboard the same Baltimore & Ohio special that brought them out to St. Louis. The same group is aboard in addition to Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary of State Kellogg, Senator Lenroot, (Republican of Wisconsin), Secretary to the President Sanders, and the military aide and physician, Col. S. A. Cheney and Maj. J. F. Coupal. Senator Lenroot left the train at Madison, Wis., at 7:20 this morning, where a brief operating stop was made.

Receives 3,000 Personally.

The president and his guests boarded their train last night at 9:30 following a public reception in honor of Mr. Coolidge, staged at the state capitol at St. Paul. For an hour, the president received personally all those who desired to meet him. It was estimated that 3,000 people filed through the line, with nearly 10,000 disappointed outside.

At Chicago, shortly before noon, the presidential special switched over from the Chicago and Northwestern to the Baltimore and Ohio road, on which the final stretch of the journey will be made.

Two towns, Olanchito and La Ceiba, Honduras, only 30 miles apart, but separated by a mule-pack mountainous journey of two days, are to be put within a few hours of each other, by a government highway costing nearly $125,000.

he passed, broke his backbone, ate his flesh, took the teeth to make implements and ornaments for himself—and so began the thinking human race.

Later man used explosive dynamite shells in place of sharp flints, he dwelt in skyscrapers in place of holes in the rocks, he used flying machines in place of canoes dug out of a log.

But all the time he was a thinking on strength, teeth, muscle, thick hide, animal instead of an animal relying claws.

And every step that he gained in his upward climb toward control of the earth and dominion over the animals was gained by the thought that was started when he made up his mind to use the sharp flint and conquer the long white teeth.

Readers, whether you be old or young, realize now that your salvation, your hope, your chances in life, are all in the thinking power hidden away in your head.

How much will you use that power use it efficiently?

How long are you going to wait to of thought?

To what extent can you make thought, recently acquired by men, control the animal forces and passions that date back millions of years to our earliest ancestors of the days when this earth was young?

Are you going to use your power, your health, your, clear mind, and your will NOW to solve your problems and protect yourself and be a benefit to the human race or are you to wait and waste and wonder and delay, until it is too late?

Chicago students, to make scientific tests possible, remained awake voluntarily for 115 hours. Although awake, they dreamed as though they were asleep. They only SEEMED awake.

Those students at the end of their lives, will suffer because of the tests voluntarily endured. After two days without sleep, it was impossible for them to write legibly and they were soon unable to distinguish individuals, and some lost control of their minds completely.

That should be a lesson for all young gentlemen who have heard that Napoleon could get along with four hours sleep a day and try to imitate him.

If Napoleon had slept more regularly, he might have stayed awake which he did not do, on the day of the battle of Waterloo. And it might have been Wellington's "Waterloo" instead of being Napoleon's.

Here's a plan for living a short time only:

Sleep too little.

Eat too much.

Believe and patronize the bootlegger.

CHINESE THROW MUD AT YANKS

Constabulary Intervenes Before Americans Act.

SHANGHAI, June 9.—Mobs of Chinese threw mud today at American bluejackets stationed at the border settlement to guard foreigners from overt acts by the Chinese on general strike against all foreigners.

Chinese constabulary intervened and dorve off the Chinese before the Americans were forced to take action.

Ten British river and coast steamers failed to sail last night and this morning because of a walkout of members of the Chinese Seamen's union. The union threatens to call out enough men to tie up all shipping, includnig trans-Pacific and European liners.

Strike agitators are directing their strongest efforts against Japanese and British subjects in an attempt to affect a nation-wide boycott of all Japanese and British goods.

Proposed Bond Issue

ferred action until an investigation could be made as to the city's authority to issue the necessary bonds, the matter being left in the hands of the finance committee together with Solicitor Brokaw and Service Director Ellis. The city is practically up to its limit in bonded indebtedness but as approximately $80,000 worth of bonds will be paid off this year, the county auditor ruled that new ones may be issued for this improvement.

Options on the property bordering on West Eighth street, to be used in the widening of the street, expire early in July. It is likely that deals for the lots will be closed within the next two weeks. The improvement will be undertaken by the board of county commissioners who are expected to seek bids on the work at the earliest possible date and complete the job this summer. The township trustees, who will not only improve that part of the Campground road, or Shadyside avenue, in East Liverpool but also link up the road past the Oak Grove camp ground, are also expected to take up their part of the legislation soon.

LOCAL PLANE THIRD IN RACE

Miss Mary Nentwick's Machine in Contest Near Akron.

A Curtiss-Canuck plane, owned by Miss Mary E. Nentwick, Dresden avenue, third in the air race, starting from Stow's field, near Akron, last Saturday. The plane was piloted by A. F. Everett, of Akron.

First place was captured by Alton Parker, Youngstown, also flying a Curtiss-Canuck machine. He was awarded the silver trophy furnished by Captain Charles Mungessor, French ace. Guy McLaughlin, Akron, carried off second honors.

Harry Kinsey, Cleveland aviator who was killed at the contest, was not entered in the air tournament but was flying from his home in Cleveland to Akron to witness the race when his plane, from a height of 1,500 feet took a nose dive to the ground. His skull was fractured and he died soon after reaching the hospital.

out mishap at Anneville late Monday, according to word today.

It is feared the balloons have been carried to sea.

The Belgian Aero club, promoter of the race, was endeavoring to get trace of the balloons. The belief that the remaining balloons were swept seaward was due to the circumstances of the Spanish balloon, Hesperio, coming down on the sea yesterday. Its crew was rescued by an American steamer. Another balloon was forced down on the shore of the ocean by west winds.

Pilots Noted for Courage.

The pilots of the missing balloons are all noted for their courage. Members of the Aero club said the pilots realized the greatest hazard was that their balloons might be blown out over the Atlantic ocean, but that they hoped a north air current would carry them to England.

If this expected north air current did not appear then, Aero club officials said, there was a possibility one or more of the balloons might be forced to the water through lack of gas or ballast.

The missing ballons are one French and two Belgian balloons. The pilot of one of the Belgian balloons is Ernest De Muyter, who holds the original Gordon Bennett cup.

qualities. Applause and laughter greeted some of his remarks. He was introduced by Carl W. Hellyer, chairman of the meeting.

Charles W. Bowman, who recently became associated with the Smith-Phillips China company, was introduced as a new member.

Plans for the international Rotary convention to be held in Cleveland next week, were outlined by President Frank Wells in charge of the meeting. About 40 members of the local club have already made hotel reservations for the convention which opens Monday. A feature of the program is a historical pageant to be given Monday evening. Ohio Rotarians and their wives will banquet at the Hotel Statler at 6:30 o'lock Thursday evening.

The chorus singing was led by Attorney Blaine H. Cochran, with Mrs. Danks Cochran as accompanist.

As a majority of the local club will be in Cleveland next week, the regular luncheon meeting on Tuesday has been cancelled.

Cleveland Realty Co. President, Shot To Death on Street

CLEVELAND, June 9.—Declared by friends to be the victim of the black hand, which he had feared for more than a year, August Rini, president of the Rini Realty company, and prominent in the political affairs of "Little Italy," was shot to death as he stepped from his auto in front of his office today.

Three gunmen fired six shots. Rini slumped to the ground. The gunmen, all, according to police reports, youthful, jumped in to an auto waiting for them with its engine running and careened down the street at a break neck pace.

The murder, committeed in broad daylight, and in one of the busiest sections of the Italian colony, attracted much attention and scores took up the pursuit of the murderers, who, however, easily outsped their pursuers.

Probe Rail Wreck In Which 12 Men In Gang Were Killed

CONVERSE, Ind., June 9.—An official investigation was launched by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company here today into the accident yesterday which killed 12 and seriously injured five members of a section gang of 30.

Unofficially the accident was said today to have been caused by the engineer running the train too fast over the rails which had just been laid, although officials of the company refused to comment for publication pending completion of their investigation.

The men were laying new rails near the scene of the accident and some opinions were expressed that the rails at the fatal spot had not yet been securely fastened down.

THE REVIEW-TRIBUNE

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 9.—Railroad, oil and some of the specialty stocks were slightly reactionary in the early trading today, in continuation of the selling movement which closed Monday's session. The motor stocks were also under pressure with Maxwell B under 110 for the first time in more than a week, General Motors down to 76, and Studebaker at 45¼, a fall of about four points since last week's flurry which sent the stock to 49.

Havana Electric Railway furnished the only spectacular feature of the period, with an overnight jump of 12 points to 174, at which price a large volume of stock came out. Buying of this stock, of which there is a small floating supply, is believed to be for the account of Electric Bond & Share company, which will eventually control its affairs.

Another favorable commentary on the current volume of domestic business was presented in the weekly report of freight car loadings, which showed a continuation of the demand for steel products and heavy consumption in the motor and building trades. Call money renewals were marked at 4 per cent.

Lightning Kills One in Columbus, Injures Another

COLUMBUS, June 9.—Lightning which accompanied the storm which broke the Capital's heat wave claimed one life and may yet cost another. Andrew Mille, 65, Westerville, was killed by a firked flash when he sought refuge from the storm under a tree on the Winding Hollow golf course. Charles Barnhart, 33, was rendered unconscious by the bolt, and is in critical condition in Grant hospital here. The bolt virtually stripped the clothes from Miller's body.

CITIES WIN IN BUS FIGHTS

Supreme Court Rules for Youngstown and Lorain.

COLUMBUS, June 9.—Joint authority to regulate bus operation and other traffic in city streets rests between the state utilities commission and the cities, the state supreme court held today in deciding vexing questions in the famous bus cases. The court ruled that the cities under their police power may reasonably regulate such traffic so long as they do not interfere with the general powers of the utilities commission and do not impair the efficiency of the utilities affected.

COLUMBUS, June 9.—The city of Youngstown today won its fight to bar jitney buses from congested downtown districts, in an opinion handed down today by the state supreme court. The court's decision overruled the judgment of the Mahoning county appellate court, which enjoined this city from enforcing the ordinance barring jitneys from congested territory, on the ground that bus permits issued by the state utilities commission were superior to the ordinance.

The court also affirmed the order of the state utilities commission fixing designated places for the receipt and discharge of passengers. The appeal was taken by John H. Hogan and other bus operators.

COLUMBUS, June 9.—The Lorain Street Railway company today won its appeal to the state supreme court against orders of the state utilities commission granting permits for operation of motor buses over the Broadway loop in the city of Lorain. Orders of the commission were reversed.

Lots of people right here in East Liverpool.

Lots of people who do much harder work than the carpenters are called upon to do.

Lots of people who have to pay, in one way or another, the $10 a day that the carpenters could be earning right now if they wanted to work.

But the carpenters,—offered $10 a day,—refuse to work and are on strike for $11 a day.

Most people realize that these are not boom times and that business conditions do not warrant rising wages. The carpenters do not seem to realize it.

The carpenters do not seem to realize that if they were to get $11 a day they would be getting it out of the pockets of many people who would be glad to get $10 a day.

It is really the public's battle. And when people generally realize that, they will demand that the carpenters at least submit their case to an arbitration board. The contractors have been suggesting that all along. The carpenters so far have refused. Some one will bring about arbitration in the end. It should be done now.

German Gymnasiums Go Back to Classic Rule

Berlin.—Nine years of Latin and six years of Greek are again to be required of all boys who complete the course in German gymnasiums.

The amount of classics taught in these schools was reduced after the conclusion of the war, but now the prewar amount of Greek and Latin has been re-established.

There have also been many changes in the schools that prepare girls for the universities; special emphasis is laid upon German history and culture.

In the opinion of German educators other European countries have done more to create a national feeling in their schools than has Germany, and the Germans are endeavoring to make good this shortcoming in their education by lessening the amount of foreign language study and introducing courses in German literature, art and history.

Freak Wreck Cheats R. R. Engineer Out of Life and Perfect Record

Engineer James Richardson, 60, had piloted the New York Cleveland express of the Erie railroad for 22 years without an accident, and was about to be retired on a pension after 35 years of service, when the train crashed into two coal cars that had been thrown across the track only a few seconds before by the sudden buckling of a long freight. The accident happened near Oswego, N. Y. Three employes including Richardson were killed, but no passengers were injured, despite the piling up of the cars in this manner

Amundsen May Find Trace of Three Swedish Engineers

North Pole Flyers' Expedition Revives Hopes of Relatives of Men Who Disappeared in Arctic Wastes.

GOTHENBURG, June.—The bold start of Roald Amundsen and his American companion, Lincoln Ellsworth, for the Nort Pole by aeroplane has revived hopes here that they may find traces of the three Swedish engineers—Solomon A. Andree, Nils Strindberg and Knut Fraenkel—who twenty-eight years ago were the first to set out from Spitzenbergen to discover the North Pole by the air route. As at that time neither aeroplane nor dirigible had been invented, they used a drift balloon. Since two days after they left no authentic news has been received of them. Whenever a new expedition sets out for the still unknown regions of the Arctic their relatives and friends throughout Sweden renew their faith that some day a clue will be discovered that will solve the mystery of their fate. Being resourceful and well-equipped men, they certainly made a struggle against adverse circumstances before surrendering, and when the truth is revealed the world may read a story as thrilling as that of Captain Scott, who reached the South Pole a short while after Amundsen, only to succumb with some of his men on the way back.

It was in the United States that Andree got his first notions of sailing through the air. In 1874 he was graduated from the Royal Institute of Technology in Stockholm, and after working two years as a mechanical engineer he decided to visit the great Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia and there, in order to get free admission to all the exhibits every day, he worked in the Swedish pavilion as a janitor. His diary shows that for dinner he usually spent from five to ten cents a day and, in addition to the lunch counter diet and drinking too much ice water, a sunstroke came close to reining his health for life. But though he returned ill, he had made the acquaintance of an American balloonist by the name of Wise and from him he had learned his first practical lessons in aviation. Toward the set price of $75 for a flight he was never able to raise more than $50.

After his return to Sweden he continued his interest in the new science and in 1882-83 he also took part in a Swedish expedition to Spitzenbergen which kindled his ambition to reach the North Pole. Ten years later he was head of the Royal Swedish Patent Office nad was then able to get a balloon of his own, the "Seva." In this he reached altitudes of 14,000 feet and made numerous observations of variations in temperature and humidity, formations of snow, hail and rain, the Pole in another balloon. The following Summer he sailed amid general enthusiasm from his port to Spitzenbergen, only to be turned back by unfavorable weather. But the next year he set out again and with his two companions went up on July 11, at 2:30 p. m. When inflated the balloon, which he had called "Ornen," or "The Eagle," was found to be leaky and the drag ropes, by which he had hoped to steer, broke soon after the start, but a returning pigeon brought the news it had stayed aloft for two days without mishaps. What happened after that no one knows.

RECORD CROWD AT HETH SHOWS

More Than 3,000 Attend Opening of Woodmen's Jubilee.

Greeted by a crowd numbering between 3,000 and 4,000, the L. J. Heth Shows, appearing on the Patterson Athletic Field, as the Woodmen's Festival and Jubilee, opened a week's engagement Monday night.

Nothing but words of praise for the cleanliness and newness of the attractions was heard. The concessions are particularly attractive, and the rides, five in number, were also exceedingly popular, especially a new ride, the Merry Mix-up.

One of the main features of the show, is the monster autodrome, which accommodates three motorcycles and a small racing automobile for the climax of each performance.

Cina's concert band, one of the main musical attractions, is winning high praise, both at the show grounds and with its concerts downtown.

The Heth Shows is one of the largest and cleanest outdoor traveling amusement organizations on the road.

The Resas Tone-A-Dyne
The Set With the Tone Modulator.
List Price $78.00
Sale Price $35.00
THE perfected RESAS TONE-A-DYNE embodies every advantageous feature claimed for any 5 tube set, plus the Tone Modulator, a feature that is to be had only with the TONE-A-DYNE.
As its name implies, the Tone Modulator controls the tone and volume at all times and under all operating conditions. Nothing complicated or difficult about it. Simply a turn of the knob and the musical or vocal selection assumes its most pleasant volume.
The Tone-A-Dyne is non-radiating. Annoyance from squeals and howls is eliminated.
The selectivity of the Tone-A-Dyne is almost uncanny. With local stations broadcasting on a wave length only 5 meters away, station WHAS (Louisville) has been readily tuned in without interference on a short indoor aerial.
The Tone-A-Dyne is so designed that it can be operated by anyone without previous experience. The three tuning dials are acurately calibrated and matched so that their settings practically correspond. There is only one filament control, and this can be set at the best operating point on reception of the first station. A snap switch controls all tubes. Clearly marked binding posts are provided in the rear for all connections.
The perfected TONE-A-DYNE is the ideal receiver. West Coast broadcasting stations are heard regularly in the East in this instrumet. It can be used on even a small indoor antenna, and on local receiving, it functions with a ground only.

EAST LIVERPOOL — AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

TUESDAY, JUNE 9, 1925.

Dead Line For Primaries

Friday marks the 60-day pre-primary period for the filing of declarations of candidacy for places on municipal tickets in the 65 precincts of Columbiana county in which balloting will occur on Tuesday, August 11.

Republican and Democratic nominees will be named for mayor, auditor, treasurer, solicitor and councilmen in East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salem, East Palestine, Salineville, Lisbon, Leetonia and Columbiana.

Comparatively few declarations have been filed with the election board by political aspirants residing in East Liverpool, the largest city which will participate in the primaries. And a like report is made by other political sub-divisions whose electors have the privilege of expressing preferences for candidates on major party tickets. This situation means there will be a last-minute flood of declarations.

Don't wait until the eleventh hour, candidates! Of course, declarations bearing a postmark prior to the expiration date will be accepted, but not infrequently the mails are slow. Midnight Friday night is the dead line.

The Fad For Polar Lands

The searchers for new lands in the Arctic circle must be getting warmer. At least, there is more animated discussion as to whose land it will be when discovered.

Donald B. MacMillan, scheduled to start on a polar cruise June 17, annonces that he will claim anything he finds for the United States.

Immediately the Canadian minister of the interior announces that Canada already has claimed and always will claim all lands north of the Dominion right up to the North Pole itself. Canada is willing to take those regions to itself sight unseen.

But here MacMillan sheds a little more light on the importance of such claims. In 1913 his party sailed for 150 miles across the Polar Sea looking for land. They took from the maps land which had previously been shown on them but which failed to materialize among the icebergs; they found no new land.

The feeling persists that there is undiscovered land there which certainly will be discovered and properly charted some day. And with all the revelations of explorers in recent years as to the mildness of the Arctic climate, its supposed vast natural resources —exclusive of ice water—and its possibilities as a productive region, it naturally seems worth while for any country to own a little property up three.

Surely, however, it is nothing for Canada and the United States to make faces at one another about.

Outlawing Poison Gas

The American public had just about lost interest and hope in the Geneva arms traffic conference when it was announced, the other day, that asphyxiating gas was to be outlawed.

Nothing could please humanitarians more than such a step. "Poison gas," in spite of all the clever arguments made for it, is one of the most dreadful things about modern warfare. The public has never forgotten the horror with which it first learned of this particular form of barbarity. The "gassed" soldiers have not forgotten it. There is a widespread fear that unless use of it is suppressed, future warfare will see the merciless axphyxiation of whole civilian populations as well as armies. The "protocol" in which the prohibition is to be embodied will be awaited eagerly by the world.

It is especially pleasing to know that the decision in favor of banning poison gas was due so largely to the appeal of the American delegation.

The conference's decision regarding warships and airplanes has been reconsidered, too, and there is a prospect of doing something to restrict traffic in those types of armament. The conference evidently has been so jarred by public criticism, especially in America, that it is now really trying to accomplish something useful.

Rum And Treaties

A new "prohibition navy" has taken the offensive on the Great Lakes, as well as along the coast. Armed vessels are now actively engaged there in hunting smugglers, in what is said to be at least technical violation of the old Russ-Bagot treaty between Canada and the United States. That pact severely limits the armed forces of both countries on the intervening waters.

It was feared that Canada would make a formal protest, demanding a literal application of the treaty and thereby elminating most of the rum-chasers. But so far, the Canadian government has refrained from action, and United States officials are avoiding discussion of the subject for fear of "starting something."

If Canada is really disposed to stand for a slight technical invasion of her treaty rights, it is a gracious attitude, and also a wise one. For to protest against the operations of the rum-chasers would place Canada in the position of protecting her own smugglers and trying to force a market for her contraband liquor in the states. The spirit of the treaty is more important than the letter, and there is no question about the government and people on this side of the border obeying the spirit of it.

It's the people with the smallest vocabularies who make most use of them.

Automobile traffic is a general consipracy to keep the fellow on the side street from horning into the procession.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains— By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, June 9.—It is at 4 a. m. Manhatten stirs sluggishly from sleep. Even Broadway shows faint trace of life with huskies popping out of subway kiosks with huge bundles of morning papers. Furtive figures with collars turned up and hats pulled down slink to coffee houses.

They want to be first at the newspaper "Help Wanted" bulletin boards. A mere gesture. Jobs do not interest them. Hundreds of them swarm there day after day, read the list and trudge aimlessly away. They merely seek to rub shiny elbows with human misery that loves company.

Broadway calls them "Christmas tree decorators" and "Easter lily salesmen." Where they come from, where they go continues to stump sociologists. And each season brings its fresh recruits. Shirtless men with stubby chins and the hang dog look of the beaten.

The 4 a. m. subway expresses are loaded with aged toothless and rheumatic women who are being whisked down town to scrub mosiac floors in big office buildings. Their yellow socketed eyes seem to belie the weird, mirthful cackles in which they indulge.

Milk cans rattle and hoof-beats are heard. The horse drawn wagon is seldom seen save in the early morning. Rag pickers and belled junk wagons scavenge the gutters and refuse cans. One by one the dazzling array of signs blink out.

Around five o'clock come the army of whistlers. Men who go to work at that time seem unable to refrain from whistling. They are in sharp and happy contrast to the dour, tight-lipped procession that fills the streets a few hours later.

Next to the rather obscure workers the earliest risers in town are the horse back riders who bring their caracoling chargers for a sunup gallop around the park bridle path.

An Efficency Eustace has figured out that a sudden half hour's rain on Fifth avenue causes a loss of $100,000 to merchants.

I never knew what it did to merchants, but I know what a sudden shower did to me one day on that famous street. A torrential rain filled the gutters and I attempted to skip the gutter to a more generous canopy across the way. In doing a Nijinski leap I alighted on something that skidded and landed flat, face up in the swirl of water. If you expect sympathy in such misfortune you're an optimist. I hailed a passing taxi. The driver drew up, looked at my dripping figure and said, "Not in my cab!" I started for a hotel lobby and the doorman said, "Not in here! them rugs cost a fortune." I walked several blocks home and know now what they mean by "He's all wet."

Two mid-town hotels have a brace of attractive young women who are known as "flirt catchers." They are attached to the hotels' detective staff and it is their job to sit about in the public waiting rooms and ensnare flirtatious men. When they have spotted them the house detectives escort them to the door and present a well known kick. It seems foolish to me. Most hotel guests are more or less strangers and suppose they do smile at a pretty woman? Even those who come in from the outside are easily rebuffed if the women look the other way. I'm too old for this flirting business, but it seems to me that in any flirtation the guilt may with justice be split 50-50.

I asked one of these women how many men she had trapped flirting. She said she averaged about two a week. And she said middle aged men were the worst offenders. College boys were never a bother. The first good word I've heard of college boys for a long time.

Property Owners Meet

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 9.—This week there is being held in Cleveland the eighteenth annual convention of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers. To this convention have come owners and managers of buildings from all sections of the United States. In a way it is what was known among the old-time Methodists as an experience meeting.

Owners of apartment houses, office buildings and business properties are given an opportunity to discuss their problems with those who have had long experience as owners or managers of similar properties. Besides the regular convention sessions there are apartment house sessions at which papers are read on various subjects of particular interest to owners of this type of property. The titles alone insure a large attendance at these sessions, some being as follows: "The Efficient and Economical Maintenance of Apartment Properties" and "What the Renting Public Want."

Then there are the group conferences where are discussed the problems of specialized buildings, such as medical buildings and garages. Such questions as typical layouts, plumbing requirements, rental rates, and garage facilities are taken up and everyone is encouraged to ask the question which has been a special bother to him. In this manner many owners and managers are able to avail themselves of the experience of someone else, and at the same time may be in a position to assist in solving the problem of others.

There is an exhibit of new operating devices where may be seen all the very latest ideas in the efficient operation of large buildings. Perhaps the owner is in the market for an incinerator—well, here is the very latest.

The National Association of Building Owners and Managers should not in any way be confused with the real estate boards. The former draws its members from owners and managers only, while the latter are chiefly concerned with real estate brokers.

The association is divided into three sections—office buildings, apartment houses, and business property. Each has its own committees which study every phase of management of such properties, and endeavor by cooperation to assist all members in obtaining the greatest satisfaction for the least money. It is pointed out that anyone can make a building attractive and give efficient service if there is unlimited money at hand. But in such an instance the tenant is the one who pays in the final analysis. The problem is to make the tenant comfortable and keep him pleased at as low a rate of overhead as is possible. In

A nasty little moth, innocent looking though he may be, can and will destroy hundreds of dollars worth of clothes or fabric household furnishings in a very short time.

You can't arrest or punish this destructive animal, but you can end his career if you catch him. The best way, though, to protect your things against his ravages is to prevent his existence—that is, by having them thoroughly dry cleaned and using proper care before storing them for summer.

Stenographer's Actions Offend Her Employer

She Takes His Advice and Both Now Happy

"I didn't realize how peevish my corn was making me around the office," writes Ruth Stewart, 723 Barry Ave., Chicago, Ill. "Suddenly my whole foot pained. I kicked my shoe off viciously.

"'Miss Ruth,' said my employer, 'instead of letting a mere corn upset you, upset me and upset our work besides, try a good corn remedy tonight. Get rid of your corn. We'll both be happier.'

"The next day I had on a 'Blue-jay' Plaster. Its soft felt ring was encircling my corn—lifting off the painful shoe pressure. When I soaked off the Plaster, the entire corn lifted out. I haven't had a corn from that day to this."

Why let a corn spoil your whole behavior? Put on a shapely "Blue-jay" Plaster and forget you have a corn. It gives instant relief, because its circular pad surrounds the corn and removes painful shoe pressure. An adhesive strip holds the pad in place. Thus the "Blue-jay" preparation—centered in the pad—stays right on top of the corn. Just the right amount to remove the corn gently, as prescribed by the skillful chemist who discovered "Blue-jay." In 48 hours the corn lifts right out.

Avoid the danger of infection that comes from paring corns yourself. Avoid the guess-work that occurs when you drop on a liquid corn remedy. Too much, or too little liquid will not give the right results. In "Blue-jay" Plasters our chemist has measured the dose for you. Hence we recommend "Blue-jay" Plasters as better than any liquid, even than our own. Package of six, 25c at any drug store. Try them, then write us your experience. This NEW way solves woman's oldest hygienic problem in a way centuries of women hoped for

THROUGH the ages, women have suffered a hygienic handicap.

Now it has been largely overcome. There is a new way in personal hygiene.

A way that supplants that uncertainty of the old-time sanitary pad with scientific safety.

Today, women live every day of every year . . . not a moment's charm lost. Dance, motor, wear filmy frocks and gowns in full confidence.

The name is Kotex . . . a method scientifically right.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad. And that means great protection.

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—that ends an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense.

You get it at any department store or drug store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

8 in every 10 women in the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits.

It will mean much to you in health, in daintiness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

KOTEX
DEODORIZED

1 Protection: 5 times as absorbent as cotton pads. Absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture—and scientifically deodorized.

2 No laundry. Discard as easily as a piece of tissue.

3 Easy to buy, anywhere. You ask for them by name. Many stores keep them ready-wrapped — help yourself, pay the clerk, that is all.

No laundry—discard as easily as a piece of tissue

GLAND STIMULATION BUILDS UP HEALTH

Dr. Peter Schmidt, a colleague of Dr. Steinach, the famous Viennese surgeon, in a recent address given in Berlin, said that gland stimulation sends new forces into the body and builds up all bodily functions.

The object of glandular treatment is to revive the devitalized glands so they may continue their normal function of supplying the vital glandular secretions so necessary to physical energy and perfect health.

Glandogen, the new scientific gland tonic, which is prepared in convenient tablet form, for men and for women, provides a simple method of taking glandular treatment. Accept no substitutes. Insist on genuine Glandogen, the original gland tonic.

DEATH OF COAL MINER PROBED

Moundsville Man's Body Taken From River at Clarington.

Prosecutor J. Lloyd Arnold of Marshall county stated last evening that no marks of violence were noted on the body of John Zasawnik, Moundsville miner who was drowned in the Ohio river early last week.

The prosecutor said that it was apparent that Zasawnik had been under the influence of intoxicants and had fallen from the boat into the river, being unable to rescue himself from the water.

An official investigation of the tragery has been made by Prosecutor Arnold. Zasawnik left home last Monday, saying he was going fishing. The empty boat was found the next day near Pipe Creek, O., having apparently drifted ashore.

Saturday, the body of the missing man was dragged from the river at Clarington, O.

The river victim was a coal miner, idle because of the strike, and was the father of nine children, who, with his wife, survive. The funeral was held yesterday from the Grisell funeral home in Moundsville, and burial took place in Mount Rose cemetery.

MOTHERS OF DAUGHTERS

Will Profit by Reading Mrs. Quigg's Letter Telling How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her Daughter

Roversford, Pa.—"My daughter was sickly from the time she was 13 years old, and when she was 15 she was irregular and also had severe headaches and pains in her sides and back. She was this way about six months before I began giving her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly, although she had tried it before. It helped her very much. She is not bothered by headaches, backaches, or cramping any more, and has not missed but one day. We recommend it to other mothers with girls who have these troubles."—Mrs. QUIGG, 210 Main St., Royersford, Pa.

Another Mother's Letter

Roxbury, Mass.—"At the age of 16 my daughter was all run down, nervous, with poor blood. These troubles made her weak and unfit to work. She tried several medicines, but they did her no good. Finally I induced her to take the Vegetable Compound, too, and she has gained in health and strength and is now working steadily. I have told these facts to many mothers, and I hope this letter will reach many more."—Mrs. HUDSON, 252 Eustis Street, Roxbury, Mass.

DRASTIC PISTOL TOTING MEASURE

It requires a permit for any person to have a machine gun, sub-gun or high powered rifle, same to be obtained from the superintenednt of state police. Merchants are not permitted to exhibit fire arms in windows and must keep records of fire arms sold. Employees of express companies handling valuables are permitted to carry pistols upon company giving $30,000 continuing, blanket bond. Railroad police commissioned by the governor may carry weapons, any place in the state, company to give continuing bond for $10,000, and limit of liability $3,500, for any unlawful use or damage done by any railroad employee hereunder.

Small Hat Best for General Use

The large hat has a picturesque appeal, but for everyday use the trim little hat is more practical. At top is one of satin with turned up brim and silver nailheads for trimming. FAIRMOUNT CHILDREN'S HOME EXPENSES FOR YEAR $40,397

Stands Sixth in State List of Similar Institutions—Lucas County Holds First Place.

Of the $1,143,776.56 spent for the operation of children's homes in Ohio up to the close of the fiscal year, Aug. 31, 1924, $40,397 was spent by the trustees of the Fairmount Children's home at Alliance, which is operated jointly by Columbiana and Stark counties. New buildings and equipment for this institution for the same period cost $14,373.92.

This outlay for the fiscal year has just been made public by the Ohio State department of Public Welfare, and its record shows the cause of all expenditures.

The cost of expense for the operating of such institutions shows that Stark-Columbiana county home stands sixth highest, the counties with large population showing the highest cost because of the larger number of children being entered from the larger counties. The cost of operating the Jefferson county home at Yellow Creek has been placed at $18,919, and but $1,208.19 spent for new equipment and buildings.

Lucas county stands first in operating cost having spent $134,055 while Summit county spent $106,992.23.

Third place is held by Montgomery county where a total operating expense of $64,332.45 is shown, while fourth position is held by Franklin county where the expense was $55,647.18.

Fifth position is held by Mahoning county with an expenditure of $41,890.98 and sixth position is given to Stark-Columbiana county with a total operating cost of $40,397.78.

The salary of the superintendent of the Fairmount Home is placed at $1,200 per annum and that of the matron at $900 annually. A total of $14,026.76 was paid out for wages to all the employes of the Fairmount home during the last fiscal year and the food for the institution cost $7,708.29. Fuel and light cost $5,905.58 while wearing apparel for the children cost $3,286.74. The small amount of $486.33 was spent during the year for drugs and medicine while no cost has been placed under the heading of "water" and "education and recreation."

The repair to all motor vehicles at the Fairmount home for the fiscal year cost $484.09 while general repairs cost $388.29. No money was spent during the year for replacement of machinery or furniture, but farm supplies cost $1,343.33. Pacific Coast Police Chief Suggests Help For Reformed Men

SANTA ANA, Cal., June.—Society is wrong in turning out men from houses of correction after a term of penal servitude without first equipping those men with trades by which to make a living without resorting to old criminal habits in order to exist.

That was the statement made here by Chief of Police R. Lee Heath, of Los Angeles, when he addressed the California division of the International Association of Criminal Identification.

In support of his plea that something be done for long-term prisoners in the way of vocational training, he cited instances where released prisoners, both men and women, finding that they are out of touch with life, and not trained for any particular line of work, become discouraged and drift back into crime, often against their own desire.

4 out of 5 are marked

There's no way to get around it. Dental statistics show that four out of every five over 40—and thousands younger, too—are victims of Pyorrhea. Do you want to avoid this dread disease?

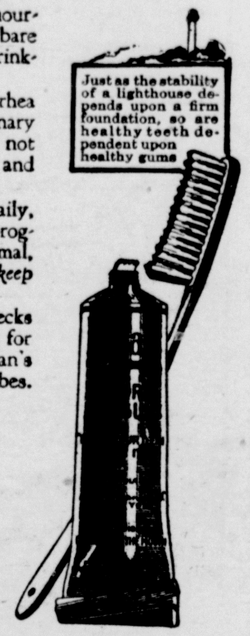

Prevent tooth decay below the gum-line

As the soil nourishes the tree roots, the gums nourish the teeth. And as the tree decays if you bare the roots, so do the teeth decay when gum shrinkage starts in.

This condition—one of the first stages of Pyorrhea—is very common and something that ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to prevent. If not checked promptly it will lead to loss of teeth and serious organic diseases.

If used in time and used consistently twice daily, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea or check its progress. It will preserve the gums in their pink, normal, healthy condition, safeguard your health and keep your mouth clean, fresh and wholesome.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Haskin's Letter

this way the owner may charge a reasonable rate for his apartments or offices and still make a fair profit.

Comparing Operating Costs

Many methods have been devised by this association. Every year is published an office building and apartment house experience exchange. This covers every phase of operation. Tables are made showing the cost of operating a building of a certain type in a particular location in one city, and the relative cost of operating a similar building in a different city is also given. In this way the owner of an office building in Washington, D. C., can compare his operating costs with that of an owner of a like building in Portland, Oregon. From the information given relative to the owner in Portland he may get some pointers on managing his building more efficiently or more economically.

Then there is the insurance committee which is now making a study of insurance rates. This committee has found that only 11 cents out of every dollar paid in premiums comes back to the owners of first class, modern fireproof structures, for fire loss. It is consequently felt that the rates are too high and an effort is being made to devise some method of reducing them. Some owners are now using mutual fire insurance at a material saving.

One of the problems which has been taken up by several of the local associations is the removal of ashes and trash from apartment and business properties, as well as from private households, by the city authorities. All are taxed alike and all should be given equal service. In the city of Buffalo the apartment owners sued the city in the supreme court and won the decision. Both New York City and Washington, D. C., are taking steps to combat this discrimination.

One of the most important things which the association does is to make surveys of office buildings or apartment houses in order to ascertain the amount of vacant space with relation to the number of possible tenants. In this manner a man who is considering putting up a new building may be advised as to his chances for realizing on his investment.

For instance not so long ago it was found in one city that office buildings had been overbuilt. A new expensive building was under construction and the owners faced the liklihood of failure. On the other hand owners of less modern buildings stood to lose a percentage of their tenants. All around the situation was serious. There simply were not enough tenants to fill all of the available office space.

A meeting was called of all the owners of office buildings in the city and it was finally agreed that each building would give up 5 per cent of its tenants to the new one. In this manner each building was 95 per cent filled and no one suffered a heavy loss. In some cities where the underwriting and selling of bonds on such properties is clearly going beyond the needs of time, efforts will be made to acquaint the pubilc with the danger of going past the saturation point.

Advice For New Owners

Another popular and helpful branch of this association is the building planning service which was inaugurated in 1923. It was the direct outcome of many requests received at the office of the national association asking for criticism of plans for proposed new buildings.

The service operates in this fashion. When a request is received from some prospective builder a committee of five or more men is provided the client and his architect at a nominal cost. These are men who are experienced in managing properties similar to the one to be constructed, and are therefore familiar with the problems attached thereto. There is no standing committee—each building project calling for particular knowledge and experience. Also the committee is selected only in consultation with the owner.

Before the meeting of this advisory committee the owner is asked to furnish a set of tentative plans and also information regarding local conditions. The members are in this way able to make a preliminary study before they are called together. This service is valuable not only to the owner but sometimes saves the architect a lot of wasted time drafting plans which later prove unsuitable. By getting together men who have had experience in every phase of managing a building of a similar type, it is possible to design the building in the most efficient manner, and thus be able to utilize every inch of floor space. For instance, there is an office building in an eastern city which is modern but the floor plan is so poor that it is practically impossible to rent the offices. With the aid of the building planning service this might have been avoided.

This association, both in its national capacity and in its local organizations, is proving a great boon to owners of apartment houses, office buildings and business properties. It conducts research and makes available to its members the results to the end that they are able to put their properties on an efficiency basis and not run them in hit or miss fashion. The tenants benefit by receiving better service. It is one more example of the tendency of the age to do everything in the best possible way and to the best interests of all.

Popularity in National Capital Is Undimmed in Her Absence

Though Helene Heilmann, daughter of M. Heilmann, former first secretary of the French embassy in Washington, no longer resides in the capital, she still is immensely popular in the younger diplomatic set there. This is being attested by the affairs being staged in her honor while she is in the city as a visitor from San Francisco, where her father now is his country's consul.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenrhu, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed East Liverpool druggists and druggists everywhere to dispense Allenrhu with the understanding that if his prescription does not banish every sign and symptom of the disease he will gladly return your money without comment.

ECZEMA

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

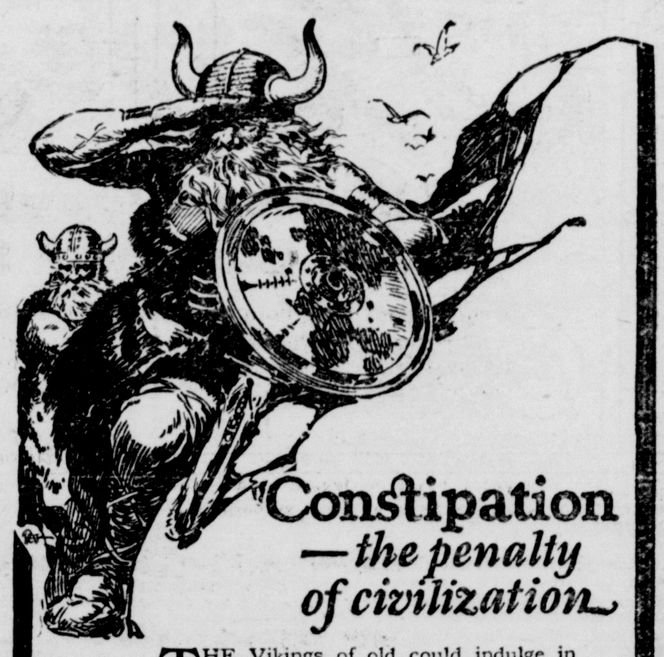

MANY people imagine that eczema or tetter needs only some external application on the skin in order to get relief. This is because the attention of the sufferer is so violently directed to the intense burning and itching which accompanies this disease. Try as they may—permanent relief will never be theirs until the disease laden blood is thoroughly cleansed.

We know there is one thing that stops eczema and that is more red-blood-cells! S.S.S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema, with all its fiery, skin digging torture, and its soul-tearing, unreachable itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting giants of Nature! S.S.S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826.

S.S.S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body strengtheners known to us mortals! When you put these facts together,—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S.S.S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it routs eczema, clears the skin, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, and gives you that more up and going appearance.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

United States Leads Nations of World In Production of Pork

WASHINGTON, June.—The United States has as many hogs as all Europe combined, while American hog production contributes nearly two-thirds of the supply of hog products entering into international trade, according to the department of Agriculture.

The department pointed out that with hog production swinging in a fairly regular alternation from over to under-production, farmers practically never hit the market juse right with their hogs. At one stage they have many hogs to sell and make but small profits or perhaps suffer a loss on them. At another stage they have but few hogs to sell, and this is always when hogs are bringing the highest prices.

Few telegrams can be sent in parts of Africa because it is a fashion among the native women to deck themselves with necklaces and bracelets made from the copper wire necessary for the transmission of these messages.

South Africa's New Tariff Policy Based On Student's Thesis

CAPETOWN, June.—South Africa's new tariff policy is based on a thesis written years ago by a South African student named Joubert at the University of Pennsylvania to obtain his degree.

That's the charge of Colonel Reitz, of South African Party, made in Parliament during a debate on the budget.

Colonel Reitz maintained the thesis was literally, word for word, the same document which the board of trade and industries issued as their original report, on which the new tariff policy was based.

Jouber's thesis, Reitz said, was prefaced with an apology that he had written it with no data available.

Announcement was made today at Bethany college that W. T. Latto, present instructor in physical education and track coach, would be retained for another year. Latto is a former Bethany athlete and has taken special training at the Springfield Y. M. C. A. college and at Columbia University.

Suffered for 15 years with constipation—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings relief in 3 weeks

Tried everything. Even operation. Only Kellogg's helped him.

Constipation paves the way to many harrowing diseases. But Mr. Williams' letter carries a message of cheer:

I have been using your ALL-BRAN for the past three weeks and it has done more for me than anything I have tried in the past fifteen years. . . . I was troubled with hemorrhoids for years. About 18 months ago I was operated on with very little relief. I tried everything under the sun. Then my wife suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and I say truthfully that it is the only thing that ever gave me relief.

Yours truly,
L. T. WILLIAMS,
1808 Broadway, Indianapolis, Ind.

Cleanse your system of constipation's devastating poisons with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—a bulk food that passes through the system, sweeping the intestine clean, stimulating normal, healthy action.

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or your grocer returns the purchase price. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made in Battle Creek, Michigan. Sold by all grocers. Served in leading hotels and restaurants.

Seven-run Spurt in Next to Final Frame Proves Too Much for Chester Nine; Powell is Relieved After Hurling Great Game; Errors of Riley's Infield Count Heavily for Visitors.

West Virginia rivals of the City Industrial Baseball league battled each other to a finish at Newell park on Monday evening, and Laughlin, playing bang-up ball as darkness enveloped the field, came from behind amid the plaudits of thenr henchmen and defeated Chester, the organization's leaders, 8 to 3.

Mahl Myers, long a minor league star, obeying the perhaps unheard-of admonition of Mrs. Myers, sitting in an adjacent automobile, to "line one out, just like you use to do," did that very thing in the fifth inning. When he stopped he was on third base, a triple to his credit and the bag occupants, three in all, had scored, putting his team in the lead and giving it the victory.

The swat was made off M. Cebula, who had supplanted Powell with the score tied, 3 to 3. By reason of two miscues by P. Cebula and L. McMath, DeLong and Reese who made the only two safeties thus far allowed by Pitcher Powell had scored.

Tisher and Riser, batting for Werkheiser, made the respective drives that P. Cebula and L. McMath booted, scoring DeLong and Reese. McConnell had bunted safely, filling the bases. Myers thus faced the star Chester twirler, just starting his relief role. He drove out a line drive that P. Bennett chased for rods, but the bases had been cleared of all but himself.

Babb struck out as realy did Watson, but W. McMath missed the third strike, it being a wild pitch, and Myers counted. Sayers released a Texas leaguer which scored Watson, who had reached second on his inability to land on his third strike.

In the Chester half of the sixth with fast approaching darkness, Digman and Jackson singled their way on, but the former was caught stretching his way to third on the latter's rap. Potts, batting for C. Marshall, flew to Sayers and Seevers, former minor league pitcher and now the Chester police chief, gave the end of the contest a dramatic aspect as, elongated of form and broad of shoulder, he squared himself at the plate to swat for W. McMath, but he "swung and missed" and the game was over.

The contest, played before a crowd larger than those attending the "baby world series" engagements, hitherto the largest attended games in local amateur league history, stood out with the loyal rooting of the devotees of both clubs. More than 150 automobiles surrounded the playing field, the occasion perhaps bringing together more motors than any previous diamond game in these parts.

The clash appealed also in that De Long, the former brilliant Chester catcher wore the windpad for Laughlin while Digman for whom he was traded played first against his former mates. Both had one hit in three times up. Both scored a run. Digman accepted six and DeLong nine chances without a slip-up. By one of the ironies of fate DeLong, generously cheered when he first came to the bat was retired in a fine catch of a foul by Digman.

Another player who started the season with Chester, Werkheiser, played left for Laughlin and really saved the contest for his club by a fine catch of Marshall's line fly with two men on and two gone. Had these runs scored, the morale of Laughlin, with a four-run lead against them might not have stood the test.

The contest, too, saw Reese and Powell, the old E. M. Knowles pitchers of other days, pitted against each other. Until the fateful fifth Powell had not allowed a single hit and had the better of his old teammates. A fast double fly by L. McMath, Digman and C. Marshall had greatly aided him.

Reese, barring a pass and a bad throw by him in the fourth inning, held his opponents. He had a hit, walked once and scored twice.

Jackson led both club players in hitting, having a perfect record with a double and two singles in two times up.

How They Scored

Reese, walking in the third, went to second on Tisher's sacrifice, Powell to L. McMath and to third as P. Cebula threw wildly to Digman on Werkheiser's drive. McConnell's long fly to F. Marshall scored him.

P. Bennett, walking in the fourth, reached third and P. Cebula second when the latter bunted and Powell threw over Myer's head into center field. Digman drove to Myers, who booted the ball and both scored. Jackson singled to middle and reached second on the throw to stop Digman at third. C. Marshall flew to McConnell, scoring Digman. McConnell threw perfectly and DeLong blocked excellently, somersaulting Digman, but the catcher dropped the ball, permitting the runner to pull himself together and touch the plate.

Howard Ehmke, Red Sox hurler, doled out five hits to the Cleveland Indians and Boston won, 3 to 1.

Jupe Pluvius crossed his fingers in the third inning and the game between Washington and Chicago was called off.

The East Liverpool baseball club was defeated in a slugging bee at Steubenville Sunday afternoon, the count being 12 to 8.

Three East Liverpool pitchers were pounded for 18 blows, and the locals collected 14 off one Steubenville moundsman.

THEY OUGHT TO PUT UP EARNEST BATTLE

For Loser in Wills-Weinert Battle Faces Oblivion; Winner Merry Future

By Norman E. Brown.

There is no title at stake in the approaching battle between Harry Wills and Charley Weinert, next week. Neither one of these men has set the boxing world on fire.

And yet the bout should be one of the most interesting ones of recent years for one reason alone.

That is that both men should be out to win as decisively and as quickly as possible.

Wills, perennial negro challenger for Jack Dempsey's title, must lick Weinert and lick him good or forfeit whatever legitimate and paper claims he has to a chance at the championship.

A victory for Weinert will place him back in the fistic sun with a loud and startling bang. A defeat will spell the end of his ring career.

In other words, both fighters have everything to gain in victory and face oblivion if they lose. What greater incentive to win could be conceived?

The trouble with most of these highly touted battles of late has been that the participants realized that said fights were just in a day's work. Clever press agenting can cover up many defects. Popularity rather than cold-fact records, tells in the majority of cases.

But neither Wills nor Weinert has a popularity that will stand a defeat at the hands of the other. And neither has records that will back up such a blow.

Wills claimed, in explaining his poor showing against the veteran war horse, Bartley Madden, last June, that he was seving his hands.

The negro used the same excuse to explain his inability to drop Luis Firpo, Busted Bull of the Pampus, risking loss of a bout with Dempsey through injury to his hands and loss of the aforementioned chance through taking a sock on the chin from Mr. Weinert.

Weinert, starting his comeback last year, included Firpo in his list of adversaries and gave that gentelman a royal battle for 12 rounds. Which gives him about as much claim to a title match right now as Wills has.

A victory over Wills will send Weinert hurtling over the heads of a dozen other logical and illogical contenders to the front row of chairs in the waiting room outside Dempsey's headquarters.

So there ought to be an air of earnestness in the Wills-Weinert affair. Which alone will make it an unusual bout in these days of dancing acts and ring Charlestons.

C. & P. NINE WINS FROM KATIES

Manning Steals Home With Deciding Run in Fourth.

Dashing down the final stretch for a clean steal at home in the fourth, Denver Manning, gardner of the Wellsville C. & P. nine, provided fans who witnessed the clash with K. T. K., with the big thrill of the contest and his club with a victory. The contest was staged at Columbian park. The count was 4 to 3.

Manning also led his team with the bat, driving out two doubles in three times up. C. Strobel, of K. T. K., contributed a double and a single in three appearances, his two blows being exactly 50 per cent of the potters' hits.

The contest developed a pitchers' battle between Patterson and the veteran Hi Allison crafty and capable. Patterson allowed but four hits and the latter six. Both fanned three men, but Allison was a trifle wild at times, passing four to Patterson's one.

Both catchers, P. Pollock and C. Morgan, had an even record, as far as stolen bases were concerned, each purloining four.

The contest was the second won by the Wellsville nine this season, its initial contest having been made in the inaugural tilt.

McShane, sterling middle gardner of the Katies, held the feature fielding play of the day, taking a long fly in deep center.

GIVES UP QUEST FOR SPEED TITLE

De Paolo Plans Belgium Trip After Altoona Race.

ALTOONA, Pa., June 9.—Peter DePaolo, winner of this year's Indianapolis classic and leader in the battle for 1925 championship honors of the racing world, will make his last appearance in the United States at the Altoona speedway on June 13 in the 250-mile speed duel, departing immediately afterwards for Belgium to compete in the European Grand Prix, and not returning until fall.

Rumored since last week, news of De Paolos intentions to compete in the greatest of European events became definitely known today in a telegram from him to speedway officials here, stating that he would arrive promptly to prepare for the renowned automobile contest here on Flag Day, but would leave immediately after the race for New York, where his costly eight-cylinder racing machine would be placed upon a trans-Atlantic liner for Belgium, where the renowned road event is to be held on July 5.

DePaolos announcement has caused an uproar in racing circles, as it means that he will practically abdicate the speed championship crown for the year, already almost assured to him, as his departure will mean his absence from the opening of the new Baltimore-Washington track at Laurel, Md., on July 11. Under the rigid rules of the contest board of the American Automobile association, all five leaders in championship standing absolutely must appear at every one of the board track classics and at Indianapolis.

The only exception ever made to this stringent law of the A. A. A. was given two years ago to the late Jimmy Murphy, who failed to appear here at the opening of the Altoona track due to his presence at the inaugural on the huge concrete course at Monza, Italy, following the special invitation of Mussolini. Even then they hesitated until all of the other great speed pilots gathered here petitioned in a group for leniency due to the special circumstances.

No details have yet been available, but DePaolo, who is given the odds to win here next Saturday afternoon in the 250-mile grind against the fastests cars and greatest drivers of the world, is expected to announce his complete plans tomorrow upon arrival with his car and corps of personal mechanics.

DEMPSEY MAY DEFEND NOSE EARLY IN FALL

Proposed Tunney-Wills go Expected to Provide Opponent.

By George Barry.

NEW YORK, June 9.—A heavyweight championship fight for next fall, with Jack Dempsey defending his newly made nose, is more than a possibility, according to deep laid plans now under discussion by the people who have promoted championship fights.

The removal of Tom Gibbons from the list of contenders has simplified matters exceedingly. So long as Tom was undefeated, and so long as the memory of his gallant 15-round stand against the champion at Shelby was still green, a championship fight could hardly be figured without taking Tom into consideration.

But Gene Tunney, a vastly improved man, knocked out the St. Paul contender in 12 rounds, and thereby gained a technical right at least to be considered an opponent for Dempsey, and on June 19, when Harry Wills meets Charley Weinert, the situation will be further clarified.

The predominant opinion in local fight circles is that Wills is going to shoot with everything he has in his bout with Weinert in order to prove his right to a meeting with Dempsey. And the opinion is that the Senegambian will win by a couple of city blocks.

This process of elimination, if it works out according to calculations, will inevitably bring Tunney and Wills together, the winner to have a crack at Dempsey. A Wills-Tunney fight on Labor day is one of the things talked about.

Billy Gibson, who manages Tunney, said today he plans to "make Jack Dempsey decide whether he is a fighter or an actor."

"Fight Wills?" said Gibson. "Sure we will fight Wills. That is exactly what we plan to do providing Dempsey stays in his shell and providing, too, that Harry is able to dispose of Weinert on June 19."

Rogers Hornsby, prince of batters, won the game for the St. Louis Cardinals against Brooklyn by singling in the ninth for the needed run. Score, 6 to 5.

Surgeons Give Chinless Man Masterful Jaw, Says Lancet

Orthodonics is Surgical Term for Facial Character Transformation.

NEW YORK—There is hope for the man with a receding chin.

No longer need he travel life's byways depressed by the thought that Nature has stamped him as a being of weak character.

Through the science of orthodentics, he may take his place in the world as a man among men—a person with a virile and aggressive chin.

New York physicians and surgeons are discussing an article which explains this surgical revelation and which appeared in the last issue of The Lancet, the authoritative English medical journal.

Jaw Forward.

"By means of a special plate," says The Lancet, "it is possible to throw the lower jaw forward, so that the molar teeth meet in their proper position."

This plate has the effect of making the patient bite forward, with the result, in most cases, the article asserts, that the receding chin eventually becomes normal.

A receding chin, The Lancet points out, is of great moment to whoever has one.

"The individual of strong character," continues The Lancet, "or who is favored by fortune, may be able to survive the handicap of a receding chin, but to many a lesser person it must often prove a real hindrance in the stress of competition."

The Lancet finds that a person with a receding chin, "being regarded as weak, is treated as such and may end up by becoming what his fellows assume him to be."

Ancient Area.

Responsibility for the belief that a protruding chin represents character is carried back by The Lancet to the beginning of animal life.

"The prosnathism (projecting jaw) of primitive man and his ape-like forebears carried with it an appearance of ferocity. In time, as man became more civilized, this impression of animal power, associated with massive jaws, became transmuted into an impression that a strong jaw represented strength of will and decision."

Police Identification Card for Every Man In Nation Proposed

SANTA ANA, Cal., June.—If George K. Home, until recently chief of detectives at Los Angeles, had his way, every adult American would carry a police identification card.

He advocated the nation-wide civil identification card system at the meeting here of the California division of the Association for Criminal Identification.

In dealing with the criminal element, the police officer explained, the registration system would go far in checking and handicapping the movements and activities of burglars hold-up men, swindlers, automobile thieves, degenerates and their kind, who are now moving from one place to another without any check or restraint whatever.

Cat, Alligator Chums.

UPTON, Mass., June.—A cat and an alligator are real clubby. A twelve-inch baby alligator was sent to Mrs. Henry Atwood by Mrs. Faith Peace, of Miami, Florida.

Mrs. Peace was formerly a resident here.

The alligator, which came by express, stood the journey well.

Mrs. Atwood's cat became very friendly with the little reptile of the Southland. They play together like old friends.
